Oklahoma City, Okla., October 1. Military forces of the state will not interfere with tomorrow's special election, Governor J. C. Walton declared in a formal statement early tonight.

The governor denied the statement attributed to him yesterday that the entire national guard would be mobilized to prevent the election. He called upon all citizens of the state to preserve the peace tomorrow.

The statement addressed to "the people of the state of Oklahoma and all peace officers of the state" follows in full:

"It has come to my notice that rumor is now being circulated that I will interfere by means of the military to prevent or obstruct the pretended election advertised to take place tomorrow, October 2, 1923.

"This is to advise you that the military forces will not intervene in this pretended election and I hereby request all citizens of the state to preserve the peace and good order.

(Signed) J. C. Walton, governor."

WALTON CALLS ANOTHER ELECTION FOR DECEMBER 6.

Oklahoma City, Okla., October 1.—Governor J. C. Walton tonight issued a call for a special election on December 6, next, on the initiative proposal which would empower the state legislature to convene itself to consider impeachment charges against the executive.

"If the majority of the people want to amend their constitution so as to enable Ku Klux Klan members of the legislature to impeach their governor and thereby remove all legal restraint on the lawlessness of the Klan, then I submit I don't want to be governor and will advise that we acknowledge the sovereignty of the emperor of the invisible empire," Governor Walton declared in a formal statement made public simultaneously with the call.

In his proclamation tonight, Governor Walton declared the supreme issue in Oklahoma is "whether the invisible empire, commonly known as the Ku Klux Klan, or the sovereign power of the state of Oklahoma shall survive." A fair vote of the people of the initiative proposal will determine the issue, he added, and "I, as chief executive, recognizing the sovereign people as the master, am willing to try the issue in the court."

George C. Tumlin Wounded in Shoulder in Front of Home While Resisting Robbery Attempt.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Just as he was about to enter the steps of his home about 10:30 Monday night, George C. Tumlin, 21, of 138 Flatshoals avenue, was shot down in resisting efforts of two unmasked, unidentified negro bandits to rob him.

The shot took effect in the right shoulder, and he was rushed to Grady hospital. Doctors said that his wounds were not serious. The robbers took $80 in cash from the victim.

"I was mounting the steps when two unmasked negroes covered me with guns," said Tumlin. "I did not think they would shoot, and I resisted when they started to take my pocketbook. As they struggled with me, one of them fired just as the other got my money. Then they escaped. The shot hit me in the shoulder, but I managed to stumble into the house and give the alarm."

The victim of the robbery lives at the home of his father-in-law J. M. Carne, Jr. Officers late Monday night were searching for the bandits, but because of the meager description given them by the robbed man, they had been unsuccessful. Members of the Atlanta detective force have been assigned to the case.

Georgia To Back
Tax Commission,
Walker AssertsExecutive Tells Business
Women Taxation Changes Are Imperative.

"The people of Georgia will back whatever system of taxation the tax commission recommends," Governor Clifford Walker told members of the women's division of the chamber of commerce, in an address before that body last night at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Governor Walker said that an income tax seemed to be the most popular solution of the acute question in Georgia's complex tax situation in the minds of those who had discussed the matter with the state tax commission. Other forms that had been recommended and discussed were a service tax, which is another name for poll tax, the governor said. Another remedy would be found in a classification tax, wherein property would be subjected to classification and taxes levied according to the value of the class it represented.

Simply Giving Results.
The governor made it very plain that he was not recommending any one of these systems, but was simply giving the results of the two weeks of investigation the tax commission had made in various sections of the state.

"Under our present ad valorem system of taxation one-half of our people are bearing the burden of taxation and the other half pays practically nothing," Governor Walker declared. "This system is all wrong. Honest business men of Georgia do not want to be tax dodgers; they want to bear their just proportion of government, and it will be the purpose of the tax commission to recommend to the coming session of the legislature a system of taxation that will be the best for all interests of the commonwealth."

"Whatever system taxation may be recommended and finally adopted will not be perfect, but faults and defects can be remedied by changes as the need for them may arise. What the state needs now is some stabilized system of taxation under which it can invite industry to come to Georgia and promise protection from flexible and unstable tax laws."

Touching upon a sales tax, which has been proposed, the governor said

PROGRESSIVES TRY TO PUSH COOLIDGE
INTO BAD CORNER

Insurgent Bloc Plans To Call Caucus To Determine Program About November 1.

FAZIER IS GONE
ON SCOUTING TRIP

La Follette Not Yet Ready To Openly Withdraw From Affiliation With Republican Party.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, October 1.—Progressives holding the whiphand in the coming congress intend to seize the offensive by springing their program in advance of President Coolidge's message in December.

Senator La Follette, head of this group, which includes thirty-five republicans and democrats of liberal leanings, will return from Europe in about two weeks. A call for a progressive conference will be issued soon thereafter, probably for November 1. Progressives familiar with the views of the Wisconsin senator predict that their bloc will stand for these measures:

1.—Repeal of the Esch-Commins railroad act.
2.—Enactment of a soldier bonus.
3.—Recognition of Russia.

4.—Submission of a constitutional amendment forbidding child labor.

Other features, such as federal regulation of stock exchanges doing an interstate business, limitation of the power of the supreme court, agricultural relief, presidential primaries and revaluation of the railroad on the basis of the current value of their securities, are to be considered, but owing to the differences among the progressives, themselves, all may not be included in the final program.

The progressives prefer to concentrate on measures which have general support, taking no chances on those apt to cause division.

President cannot ignore it. This tends to place President Coolidge on the defensive. He will be unable to ignore the progressive program in his message to congress which will follow a few weeks after the caucus. If Coolidge takes issue with the progressives, he will alienate a great block of voters on the eve of the primary season, and play into the hands of his rivals for the nomination. If he endorses any sections of the platform, they are likely to be driven through congress promptly, adding to the prestige of the progressives and whetting their appetite for greater victories.

President Coolidge is considering how best to meet the expected assault of the insurgents. He intends to have Senator La Follette at the white house as he had Borah recently. The Wisconsin senator, like Borah, expects to retain his party allegiance for the present at least. He is prepared to sit in the republican caucus and demand his share of committee plum for himself and his followers. Coolidge may be able to work through administration leaders at the capitol.

Hanging over all is the question of 1924. La Follette may or may not believe he can capture the republican nomination for himself, but he most emphatically believes he can, with the aid of his following, force his party to choose a progressive. This phase of the situation is giving regular republicans some worry.

Senator Frazier, of North Dakota, one of La Follette's right-hand men, left Monday for the northwest to canvass that country before the progressive caucus.

BRITISH PREMIERS
MEETING IN LONDON

London, October 1.—(By The Associated Press.)—With all the premiers of the empire except Premier Bruce, of Australia, in attendance, the British imperial conference opened its six weeks' session at No. 10 Downing street today and after sitting for two hours adjourned until Wednesday morning. At that time the program for the procedure of the premiers were drawn up and the conference will listen to statements from Lord Curzon, the secretary for foreign affairs, and the Duke of Devonshire, secretary for the colonies, regarding the colonial policy.

The official communique issued after today's meeting said that Prime Minister Baldwin in welcoming the delegates reviewed the international situation and that short reports were made by visiting premiers.

BIG FOUR UNIONS
PRESENT DEMANDS FOR WAGE HIKES

Firemen Include Proposition for $8 Per Day Minimum Wage in Contract.

Cleveland, Ohio, October 1.—(By The Associated Press.)—Movement by the four railroad transportation brotherhoods to regain the wages in effect on the various railroads of the United States in 1920—an increase of approximately 12-1/2 per cent over the present scale—is in full swing, the engineers having joined with the firemen, trainmen and conductors today.

In addition, the firemen are seeking an $8 per day minimum pay. So far as known, this is the first time that a minimum daily rate of pay has been demanded by the transportation brotherhoods.

Through a circular, instructions were sent to the general chairman and secretary-treasurers of all general committees of adjustment of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers to present thirty day notices of the intention of the brotherhood members to amend their schedules of pay to railroads where the contracts have expired.

The movement in several places was a joint one by the engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Enginemen. The firemen served the notices on the Michigan Central, Pere Marquette and Chicago and Alton several days ago. Officials of the New York Central, Erie, and Central Railway of New Jersey, among others were to have received them today. The engineers' contract with the New York Central does not expire until October 3.

The system committees of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors were notified several days ago to present their demands to the railroads of October 10.

The brotherhood seeks a resumption of schedules in effect before the United States railroad labor board on July 1, 1921, reduced the trainmen's wages.

Polls Open in East Point, College Park and Hapeville at Seven O'Clock This Morning.

Polling Places Named.

Polling precincts for East Point have been fixed at the following places:

First Ward—City hall.

Second Ward—W. C. Carroll's real estate office, on Cleveland avenue.

Third Ward—Yanney's store, corner of Martin street and Cleveland avenue. Polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m.

College Park polling precincts are located as follows:

First Ward—Main and Walker streets.

Second Ward—H. A. Godby's office on South Main street.

The third ward polling place had not been announced Monday night but will probably be in the Atlanta & West Point railway warehouse.

Polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m.

The one polling place in Hapeville will be the council chamber in city hall. Polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 3 p. m.

The close of the campaign for annexation of East Point, Hapeville and College Park to Atlanta, which will be decided at the polls today by the voters of these three prosperous suburbs, was marked by an enthusiastic rally in Jefferson Park last night, at which sharp criticism of the East Point police, sanitary, fire, and schools departments was voiced, and a plea made for success of the merger proposal "for the sake of our children." It was made by Mrs. F. M. Smith, an East Point resident who will vote to merge with Atlanta.

The opinions expressed at the meeting, attended by more than 1,000 persons, and the applause in response to statements by pro-annexation speakers, indicated a tremendous sentiment in East Point in behalf of annexation.

Ready With Injunction.

Plans for the election were completed Monday. Rumors that election managers in East Point would close the polls at 3 o'clock to prevent East Pointers who live in Atlanta from voting after their return from work, were met Monday night with the announcement by Clint W. Hager, United States district attorney and East Point resident, that he was ready to join them to compel the polls to be kept open until 7 o'clock, the time he said is set by the city charter.

GOMPERS BLAMES
"BIG BIZ" IN TALK
ATA. F. L. MEETING

Declares Too Many Immigrants Whose Standards of Living "Are Far Below America."

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Portland, Ore., October 1.—Loyalty to the government of the United States, and determination to improve it through the effort of organized labor, was voiced by President Samuel Gompers in his address opening the forty-third annual convention of the American Federation of Labor here today.

"We ask that the labor movement which we are directing our energies," he added, "Chief among the questions that need attention, be placed child labor."

The convention received the report of the executive council which declared against invasion of industrial life by the government. The report also denounced the Ku Klux Klan and the fascist movement. Applause greeted announcement of the council's attitude toward the Klan.

"We ask that the labor movement be and continue to be a movement of wage earners, by wage earners and for wage earners," said President Gompers.

The labor leader asserted that "big business" had brought in great numbers of persons of "far below the American standards of living" and went on:

"Will Organize Them.
"If these hordes are brought in to labor in America; if they are good enough to be brought here for profit, they are good enough for us to try to organize them and make better Americans of them. If here and there is a 'red' among them, it is not our fault; the sin must be upon the head of those that brought them hither."

"So long as they are wage earners and are organized, we'll organize them, not as Reds and radicals but as better citizens."

Dealing with the farm problem, he declared that profiteers had kept organized labor and farm producers apart and had exploited both.

"They have taken on both sides more money as profit than they have given either to the farmer or the industrial worker."

Would Make U. S. Better.

"I have an abiding faith that in our American, slow moving as we are, the stamina and intelligence of the people will bring the farmer and wage workers together in solution of the great problem that is confronting both."

He attacked the "open shop" as an effort of big business to deprive American labor of the power to protect itself against a lowering of the standard of living and employment.

"Great as is the United States government," said Mr. Gompers, "and best in the world though it is, it is still not good enough for us nor good enough for those who are to come after us, and under the law we are here to contribute our share to make it still better, and to make America the best and most productive community in the onward march of civilization."

At the opening of the afternoon session, Mr. Gompers, conveyed a message of good will from President Calvin Coolidge and told of a conference in which the president showed interest in measures to check child labor and in the immigration question.

TO BLOCK PUTSCH

Empire Built by Bismarck Totters as Factions in Germany Battle for Supremacy.

FASCIST, SEPARATIST
MAKE DUAL THREAT

Bourgeois Cabinet Looms as Government Moves to Weld Warring Parties.

BY FERDINAND JAHN.

Berlin, October 1.—Split into myriad factions, the Germany that Bismarck welded from the fabric of imperial dreams is tottering, and may crumble into ruin.

In the capital of Berlin—the regal city built to rule the empire—stagnant struggle against problems of revolt that threaten to sunder the nation, checking the map of northwest Europe with tiny quibbling states.

A new crisis developed Monday when socialists in the Stresemann cabinet opposed the chancellor's economic reconstruction plans which included increased production by longer working hours.

With the prospects of a serious split, it was reliably reported that Stresemann might dump the objectors from the cabinet and either select new ministers or establish himself as a dictator.

Meanwhile, internal unrest assumed new proportions when northern fascists, in a swift and dramatic attempt at a coup, struck at Koenigsberg, in the Brandenburg province near Berlin.

Members of "the steel helmets" attempted to seize the city, attacking the fortress garrison.

Nation in Turmoil.

Two squadrons of cavalry were rushed from Frankfurt-Am-Order to reinforce local troops and Minister of Defense Gessler ordered ruthless suppression of the revolt.

Following the incident, the government ordered censorship of Berlin newspapers, permitting them to publish only official news.

In the Ruhr the menace of separatism continues. The Dusseldorf carnage has spread terror throughout the zone. More outbreaks are feared. Heightening the chaotic picture is the Bavarian monarchist movement. Some of the leaders assert the Bavarian monarchy will be proclaimed within a week. Others say that the move will be held up for a time, but that the temper of the people will force an ultimate break.

With martial pomp and panoply, Hitler is rallying his fascist legions. Old battle songs, old war cries, ring through the Bavarian villages. The countryside is in ferment with word of the impending putsch.

Junkers Are Active.

Prussian junkers are urging the return of the monarchical system, also. Declaring that republicanism is a failure, Herr von Bonin, prominent member of the Prussian diet in the reign of Kaiser Wilhelm, II, has filed a formal petition with the Prussian landtag for restoration of the monarchy in Prussia—to halt economic disintegration and prevent a catastrophic famine.

The petition signed by von Bonin was printed under a prominent headline in the Dusseldorf Kreuz Zeitung, a reactionary newspaper which still carries the iron cross and the words: "With God for kaiser and fatherland" in its title line.

The petition as printed reads: "The republican form of government of Prussia has existed for nearly five years and the fact that it has not bettered the conditions and interests of the Prussian state and the Prussian people has become generally accepted. The people of Prussia are weary of the rule of self-seeking parties and demand a king who stands above all parties."

"The restoration of the monarchy has become a necessity based both on political and economic grounds in order to keep the land and the people from going completely to ruin."

Calls Monarchy Salvation.

"In political circles, it is pointed out, that only the monarchy can regain for us attention and position among the nations of the world. The best argument for the justice of such a declaration lies in the fact that all our enemy nations rigorously approve our republican form of government. They know very well that this form of government is valuable

COMMITTEE WILL DECIDE PROPOSED
BOXING ORDINANCE

Edward H. Inman Elected to Succeed Councilman Edgar Watkins From the Eighth Ward.

HOURS OF GARBAGE
COLLECTION CHANGED

Fight Over Establishment of New Quarry Is Settled—Golf Course Is Saved by Compromise.

A night police court was created, Edgewood avenue paving and widening approved, Edward H. Inman elected to succeed Councilman Edgar Watkins, the October finance sheet adopted, and hours of downtown garbage collection changed by Atlanta city council Monday at the longest session in over a month.

The "traffic committee" of council, it was found, is no longer in existence and an ordinance, introduced by Councilman York, to create a new body, was referred to the ordinance committee; Alderman Jesse Armstrong's boxing commission ordinance was referred to a joint meeting of the tax and ordinance committees; and proposal to remove the city stockade from the new Girls' High school vicinity was referred to the prison committee to find ways and means.

Reached Agreement.

The hot fight over establishment of a new quarry on the Rosalia street property during the winter, which would have resulted in closing the James L. Key golf course, was adjusted before the meeting by a compromise agreement to continue to get stone from the present quarry and not to open a new one, as was requested by the street committee of council. The golf course will remain open under the compromise.

The street paving bids approved last week by the street committee were accepted by council and will go Tuesday to Mayor Sims for signature, accelerating progress on Atlanta's $500,000 street paving program.

The Georgia Railway and Power company was authorized to extend its street car lines 4,000 feet beyond Virginia avenue on Highland avenue.

St. Philip's church was authorized to sell tags October 13 to pay off church debts.

An ordinance requiring "five stock to be kept on the ground floor of buildings," by Councilman Couch, was referred to the ordinance committee. He said some horses were stalled on the second floor of a residence in the sixth ward.

Parking Amendment.

Automobiles were prohibited from parking within 200 feet of the entrance of city parks. The ordinance, by Alderman Hartfield, was aimed specifically at jitney drivers who park their cars at the Grant park entrance, and who are blamed by residents of the neighborhood for rowdiness that broke out recently in the park.

Councilman W. Garland Cooper and Chief of Construction W. A. Hand, Jr., were commended by council and commended for their work in adoption of the street committee's report on Charles Hill's charges of improper use of city funds on Lillian avenue.

Mayor's Approval Needed.

The night police court measure requires only approval of Mayor Walter A. Sims to become a law. Under its provisions a night session will begin at 7:30 o'clock and will continue until the day's docket has been cleared.

No additional positions will be created to operate the court, it was explained to council by Alderman J. N. Hagdale, who introduced the measure. The plan provides for Recorder Pro Tem Callaway and Recorder George E. Johnson to divide time through the day. Court will open in the mornings and afternoons as usual and the two judges will work "in shifts." Callaway has been acting as clerk while Judge Johnson was on the bench and has been assisted by policemen in handling papers when he himself was presiding. Under the night court plan, members of the police department will be assigned to assist the recorder. In event both of them are absent from court, the chief of police will notify, in alphabetical order, the mayor, aldermen and councilmen until one has been found to serve. This system also has been followed in the past.

Guarantee Quicker Trials.

Immediate disposal of police cases is expected to be made as soon as the light court begins. The number of persons kept overnight in jail is expected to be largely reduced, effecting a saving for the city, and fewer bond forfeitures will result from overnight delay between making and trying a case.

The night court was hotly opposed by Councilman Couch, who asserted that it would mean, in fact, analysis, only creation of more jobs at police station.

The resignation of Edgar Watkins as councilman from the eighth ward, "accepted with profound regret" by council on motion of Councilman Claude E. Buchanan, also of the eighth ward. Mr. Watkins in his resignation suggested that the nominee at the September 5 primary, Edward H. Inman, be elected to succeed him for the unexpired period in order that he might be more familiar with councilmanic business when his own term begins January 1. Mr. Buchanan nominated Mr. Inman, who was elected by unanimous vote.

Mr. Inman probably will take the oath of office at the next session of council. Mayor Sims will appoint him to the committees on which Mr. Watkins has served, including the water board, school committee and bridge committee.

Edgewood Plan Adopted.

The Edgewood paving and widening compromise, recommended by the street committee, was adopted after Alderman Carpenter had launched a warm attack against what he termed to be "over hasty action" in the face of objections by property owners.

The county commissioners are to be asked to put up the city's share of the cost of paving Edgewood avenue from Pryor street to Boulevard, and of cutting four feet from each sidewalk between Iry and Boulevard. The Nunnally property interests have made it known that they will enjoy the cutting of the sidewalk along their Edgewood avenue building.

The October session of council has a shortage of $32,000 that had become apparent in the figures in the June finance sheet. Comptroller B. Graham West stated that several estimates will prove inaccurate and that a shortage will result at the end of the year despite adjustments made in the sheet. The sheet was adopted without discussion and by unanimous vote.

Garbage Changes.

The Duval ordinance, adopted by council, changes hours of collecting downtown garbage from morning to night. It is aimed to relieve traffic congestion during the morning business rush hour. The ordinance requires separation of wet from dry garbage, looking toward sale by the city of rags, paper and boxes classified as dry garbage. Other garbage collection changes will be considered jointly by the sanitary and ordinance committee of council Friday.

Alderman Armstrong's boxing commission ordinance had a dizzy career through council Monday. It was adopted without dissent when first introduced and before it had been read through by all members.

Later in the session Councilman Couch found that the ordinance provided an assessment of five per cent of gross receipts of the commission to defray expenses of the commission and moved to reconsider its adoption to have copies of the ordinance placed in the hands of each member of council for study, and to take it up again at the next session of council. This motion was adopted.

Urges Reconsideration.

Near the close of the session Alderman Armstrong asked that the ordinance be reconsidered and that the paper be adopted. It was finally referred to a joint meeting of the ordinance and tax committees to adjust a question of whether the city should continue to charge a business license fee in addition to the five per cent levy to be collected by the boxing commission.

The ordinance authorizes the mayor to appoint three commissioners with absolute authority to regulate all boxing matches in the city and to spend the five per cent of the gross gate receipts. All money in the commission's treasury at the first of each year would be turned over to the city treasury.

Bouts would be limited to 15 rounds duration. Boxers whose weights are more than 18 pounds different would not be allowed to box each other, except in the heavyweight class. Supervision of a physician must be required. Two judges would award decisions with the referee to vote in case of a tie. All seconds, referees, physicians, judges, promoters and boxers would have to be licensed before they could engage in a fight. The committee would have authority to revoke licenses if "the good of the game" seemed to require it. The commission would have full power of the police department to enforce its rulings.

Council elected J. T. Mitchell election manager from the eighth ward, nomination by Councilman W. M. Etheridge.

No other elections were held. Election of city clerk does not take place until next summer.

Farmers Must Pay For I. H. C. Division, Asserts Defense

St. Paul, Minn., October 1.—Asserting that further division of the International Harvester Company would result in making farmers pay more for their implements, attorneys for the corporation today filed in the United States district court here an answer to the attorney general's recent petition asking such division.

The company claimed that since the dissolution decreed by the wartime agreement with the government in 1918, the competitive conditions contemplated by the Sherman act had been made fully existent in the business.

The answer points out that changing conditions in agriculture have also operated to prevent the company from having any such monopoly as the government has charged. The tractor, especially, has become one of the most important machines in the domestic trade, the answer said.

The documents quoted figures from the government's own petitions in the case showing that the company's percentage of domestic trade in harvesting machines has decreased from 85 per cent in 1903 to 64 per cent in 1918 and to 63 per cent in 1921-22.

The division of the company, it was argued, would place it in an unfair position in the competition of the business and would deprive it of the participating in the general manufacturing concern which, as now constituted, possesses full line production and distribution. Such a full line business is essential to the successful conduct of a corporation which must compete for all-year-round trade, according to the answer. It is further averred that all the company's principal competitors are thus equipped and to drive the International Harvester company out of the completed field would give these competitors an unfair advantage.

WANTS FORD TO MAKE NEW OFFER ON SHOALS

Washington, October 1.—"Same business reasons" upon which the government may base a request to Henry Ford to submit a revised offer for the Muscle Shoals properties in Alabama were laid before President Coolidge today by Representative Oliver, democrat, Alabama, during a discussion of the Muscle Shoals situation brought about by disposal of the Gorgas steam power plant to the Alabama Power company.

Mr. Oliver told the executive that through cooperation of the administrative and legislative branches of the government he believed Mr. Ford might be induced to submit another offer which would be of advantage to the government. Although the Gorgas plant was essential to the plan of development in the mind of the Detroit manufacturer, Mr. Oliver is of the opinion that the remaining property could be profitably disposed of to Mr. Ford.

For the Woman Who Thinks and Plans Far Ahead

The woman of today is well informed on world affairs and takes a keener interest in what is going on than ever before, but there are some yet who fail to analyze conditions generally as to the effect on themselves and their families.

Conditions throughout the world create different effects right here in our homes. Such, for instance, as the recent Japanese disaster, the threatened coal strike and European war status have a quick and decided effect on our food prices.

And the prudent, thinking housewife will be quick to see that the Japanese disaster, the settling of the coal strike and the better European prospects will make for a stiffening up of food prices by reason of increased demand.

It is wise to watch conditions and supply your larder with foods that can be kept safely while they can be had at good prices and guard against advances, which are the inevitable result of increased demand.

COTTON ASSOCIATION NOT SEEKING U. S. AID

Washington, October 1.—Plans for the meeting at Columbia, S. C., October 16, of the American Cotton Association were discussed with President Coolidge today by Joseph O. Thompson, of Birmingham, Ala., representing the association.

The American Cotton association is not now seeking nor will it ever ask for government aid, Mr. Thompson told the president. The farmer, he said, will work out the problem of dealing with the boll weevil through his own organization and by cooperation of those directly interested in cotton and not call upon the government except for the cooperation of existing agencies, which the president assured him would give the association support.

Mr. Thompson informed the president that there was a strong feeling in the south that there must be more self help and a slowing down of demand for that relief measure from the government.

The people of the south were coming to realize, said Mr. Thompson, that agriculture, like all other business, must stand or fall on its merits and that prices must and will be governed by the law of supply and demand.

MODEL SCHOOL OPENS FOR BARNEY PUPILS

Quitman, Ga., October 1.—(Special.) The Barney school, which has been called "the modern rural school" in the southeastern states, opened today. During the last session of the general assembly the state board of education distributed booklets to all members of the legislature giving a description of the Barney school and suggesting its new building as the highest type for rural schools.

The new building is the result of a bond issue in the Barney school district. It is modern in every respect, fireproof and completely equipped so far as sanitation and proper lighting are concerned. The state board of education, in conjunction with the local county board, has succeeded in making this school building represent the last word in school equipment and convenience.

Contractors have been working day and night to complete the building, and although there remains some work to be done, the construction had proceeded far enough to enable the opening today, which was postponed for two weeks. Later in the month the building will be formally dedicated with many distinguished educators present and participating in the program.

Death of Wealthy N. Y. Woman In Country Club Is Investigated

MRS. CHARLES WEBB, THE DEAD WOMAN, AND HER HUSBAND

White Plains, N. Y., October 1.—Dr. William J. Meyer, who attended Mrs. Henry Webb, wealthy New York society woman, prior to her death at the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club last Tuesday under circumstances allegedly mysterious, announced tonight that he had been summoned to appear before the West Chester October grand jury tomorrow.

At the time Dr. Meyer made his disclosure Mr. Webb, husband of the dead woman, who was alleged by relatives to have been the victim of slow poisoning, was being questioned at the office of District Attorney Rowland.

Dr. Meyer, who was called to attend Mrs. Webb when relatives became doubtful of the cause of her illness about three weeks before her death, was the first person to demand an investigation. He refused to issue a death certificate and told Coroner Fitzgerald that death was not due to natural causes in his opinion.

RELATIVES CLAIM DEATH DUE TO POISON

New York, October 1.—Officials at police headquarters today made clear that the city police department was not yet taking any action in the investigation.

Investigation of the death of Mrs. Gertrude E. Gorman Webb, wealthy New York and Philadelphia society woman who died at the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club, in Rye, N. Y., last Tuesday.

Detectives of the local force, it was stated, had attended Mrs. Webb's funeral and had familiarized themselves with the principals in the case so that they were well posted in the event of a request from the Westchester county authorities for aid or cooperation.

It was denied that it had been the intention of local police to question Charles Webb, husband of the deceased, and Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, toxicologist of Bellevue hospital who was employed by the Westchester county authorities to examine the body.

Mrs. Webb's relatives have insisted that an analysis of the dead woman's kidneys be made to discover if she was a victim of poison. She first became ill over a month ago and gradually grew worse while a number of physicians were at a loss to diagnose her illness.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Hunter, of Devon, Pa., who were with Mrs. Webb when she died, charge that she was the victim of slow poisoning administered over a period of at least a month.

The symptoms of which she complained, the Hunters said, were identical with those suffered by her mother, who died just before the Webb marriage last November. The mother had strongly objected to Webb's courtship, they added.

Although the chemical analysis has not been completed, Coroner Fitzgerald announced last night that he was preparing to make an investigation of the findings if the analysis warranted.

Mrs. Webb left an estimated estate of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. Mr. Webb said last night that she had made a new will just before her death. The new will had been disposed of her estate among relatives.

White Plains, N. Y., October 1.—Charles P. Webb was "invited" today by District Attorney Rowland to come to White Plains and be questioned about the death of his wife, Mrs. Gertrude E. Gorman Webb, a social favorite, which occurred under mysterious circumstances at Rye, N. Y., last Tuesday.

MOTHER-IN-LAW
HELD FOR DEATH OF YOUNG BRIDE

Lawrenceburg, Ky., October 1.—Mrs. Fannie Tipton, wife of an Anderson county farmer, is being held in the county jail here without bond to await the action of the November grand jury following the sudden death September 18 of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jessie Thomas Tipton, 18, bride of less than a month.

State's witnesses in the examining trial Saturday of the elder Mrs. Tipton, who is charged with having poisoned her son's wife, testified the defendant had objected strongly to the marriage and that she had made threats against her daughter-in-law soon after the wedding. Testimony also was introduced to the effect the defendant had purchased poison in a drug store here, and had used it to kill rats, the day before the young woman died.

Dr. Lynwood Brookwood, a chemist at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, testified he made an examination of the victim's stomach and found it contained poison. Two other doctors testified death was caused by poison.

Everett L. Tipton, husband of the dead woman, a state's witness, testified his mother had been opposed to his marriage, but said after the wedding she welcomed his bride to her home and treated her kindly.

"For those who wish to lead the hygienic life, coffee and tea are not recommended, except for purely medicinal purposes. . . The only hygienic excuse for such drugs is in emergencies when work must be done and natural aids cannot for some reason be employed, but always the cost must be counted and the danger considered of forming a habit of denying the brain, nervous system or muscles the rest which is their due."

—From a "Keep Well" Leaflet on "Over-stimulation," Issued by the Life Extension Institute.

Why not avoid "counting the cost?"

REST is better than a whipping, for tired nerves and muscles—better for today and infinitely better for tomorrow when the penalties of over-driving are likely to come due in headaches, nervousness, and increased difficulty of resting.

Postum is a good friend of rest and health. Postum is a delightful, comforting and thoroughly satisfying mealtime beverage, splendid in flavor and aroma—but containing no drug which can excite nerves or disturb digestion.

If you are whipping up nerves with coffee or tea, try a change to Postum. It will supply all the comfort and pleasure of a hot mealtime drink, and it will let you get the natural sleep and rest that puts strength and zest into tired mind, nerves and muscles. You'll be counting profits instead of costs.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

If Your Young Son Asks,
"What Is Linoleum?"

MANY times you have walked on linoleum and felt its springy resilience under your feet.

You may have heard your wife say that the linoleum floor in her kitchen is the easiest floor in the house to keep fresh and new-looking.

Have you ever wondered what linoleum is made of and what kinds of linoleum there are?

Your young son is always asking questions. Tomorrow evening he may ask, "Daddy, what is linoleum?" Here is a brief linoleum primer that is worth preserving, not only to answer your son's questionings, but also to help you to buy linoleum more intelligently.

Cork bark is ground to a powder, then mixed with linseed oil

Cork

Linoleum is made of powdered cork. Cork is the outer bark of the cork tree, which grows in Spain. Cork is used for bottle-stoppers, because it does not absorb moisture. Cork is springy and resilient.

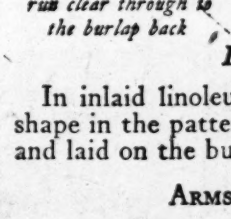

Linseed oil

Linoleum gets its name from linseed oil, which is pressed from flaxseed, which comes from the Argentine and our own Northwest. Exposed to air, linseed oil oxidizes; that is, forms a tough, solid, rubbery film.

Powdered cork and oxidized linseed oil, thoroughly mixed, are pressed under heated rollers on to strong burlap. Burlap is made of jute, which comes from India. The strong burlap back makes linoleum sturdy, nontearing. You can always be sure that you are getting real linoleum by looking for the burlap back.

Plain linoleum

Various pigments are mixed with the cork and linseed oil to make plain colored linoleum—brown, gray, green, blue, or the new two-tone Jaspé linoleum. Plain linoleum that is one-quarter-inch thick is called battleship linoleum because it was first used on the decks of war vessels. For homes and ordinary office use, one-eighth-inch-thick plain linoleum will wear for many years.

Inlaid linoleum designs run clear through to the burlap back

Inlaid linoleum

In inlaid linoleum each little colored block or shape in the pattern is died or cut out separately and laid on the burlap, then pressed under heavy rolls. Most women know that in inlaid linoleum the colors go clear through to the burlap back.

Printed linoleum

Printed linoleum is made of the natural brown cork and oxidized linseed oil pressed on burlap, with a pattern printed on the brown surface with heavy oil paints. Big printing presses put as many as eight colors on a single pattern. Less expensive than inlaid or plain linoleum, a printed linoleum floor brightens any room and wears for years. Reputable merchants recommend printed linoleum, which you can easily identify by the brown edge and burlap back. In Armstrong's Linoleum there are hundreds of designs to suit any room and any decorative scheme.

Many people have linoleum on every floor of their homes. Good stores everywhere feature Armstrong's Linoleum.

Write for free sample and booklet

Let us send you a sample of Armstrong's Linoleum, and a copy of our new booklet, "New Floors for Old." It contains a score of colorplates of distinctive designs of Armstrong's Linoleum, obtainable at good stores; also information on laying linoleum and on how to care for your linoleum floors, together with names of merchants in your city who sell Armstrong's Linoleum.

JUBS AIRPLANES AS FARMERS' AID

St. Louis, Mo., October 1.—The airplane was described as "the farmer's friend" by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in a paper prepared for the air institute of the aeronautical chamber of commerce here. Half-a-dozen ways in which flies are saving dollars for growers were outlined by the secretary.

The first use of the airplane in agriculture, Wallace said, was in scouting work to search for the pink boll worm in Texas. In 1918 and 1919 flyers scouted about over the cotton fields with considerable success in locating the pest. Two of the bug hunters were killed, however, and the work was discontinued.

Planes are also being used in locating green fly damage to winter wheat in Oklahoma and Texas. Wallace revealed, the advantage being that the ravages of the insect can be located from above better than from below and a far wider area covered by the searcher.

The department of agriculture entomologists, the secretary says, are doing valuable research work looking for spores of wheat stem rust from 1,000 to 10,000 feet in the air, indicating to the experts just how wide a distribution air currents give the disease.

Check Reports by Plane. The estimate of the Louisiana cotton crop has been checked by airplane photography, and the entire cotton belt could thus be "checked" in 2,000 hours of flying time, Wallace continued. The progress of spring plowing may also be observed over a large area in like manner. Getting closer to earth, however, the airplane has performed a function even more concrete. Successful tests have been made in spraying powder on cotton plants to fight the cotton leaf worm and the boll weevil. The war department has loaned the department of agriculture three planes for this work and congress has appropriated $40,000 for experiments.

"Successful distribution can be made from a height of 200 feet on a quiet day, but fields have been dusted from as low as 35," Wallace says, concluding by citing the use of aircraft by the forest patrol in Oregon to detect forest fires.

A paper from Colonel Paul Henderson, second assistant postmaster general, outlining development of air mail flying, was also read.

to them, at the same time injuring the Prussian people, damping them to continuous impotency.

"The republican government has in these five years shown beyond question its inability to halt the fall of the mark and the directly connected increases in prices which have become a national calamity."

"The general impression exists that the government, the parliamentary parties, the labor unions and the organizations of government workers are holding a contest to determine which can drive the prices highest. All experiments to halt the catastrophe of the mark have proved fruitless and will remain fruitless in the future. Only the monarchy can cause the dollar to halt and prevent a catastrophic famine throughout the land."

WORK AND PRODUCTION HOPE OF NATION

Berlin, October 1.—(By the Associated Press.)—Production and still more production, abandonment of the eight-hour fetish and drastic curtailment of government jobs constitute some of the issues on which Chancellor Stresemann and the socialist are likely to disagree in the near future. The Bavarian situation has also furnished an unexpected supply of combustibles which threaten the present solidarity of Stresemann's socialist bourgeois cabinet.

Although the cabinet held a long and alleged harmonious session today at which the outlines of the chancellor's declaration to the reichstag tomorrow were formulated. Parliamentary circles believe that the socialist members of the cabinet will be forced to retire, under the increasing pressure of the party's radical wing.

The points of divergence are wholly of internal origin, as the party, as such, is in complete accord with the chancellor's foreign policies as reflected in the abandonment of passive resistance. While there are not as yet active indications of a crisis around the reichstag, the next 48 hours will in all probability reveal the advent of a bourgeois government, which at least, will receive the neutral support of the German nationalists, unless they decide for active participation.

Such an eventuality would mark the beginning of a government "dedicated to law and order" for which apparently there is a growing sentiment on all sides. While such a government would mark a sharp turn to the right, and its tenure of office would be a matter for speculation, it would have given a sharp impetus to the insistent demand for a government of law and order which the nation's foreign situation and the disruption of its economy urgently demand.

There is enough liberal sentiment discernible in reichstag circles in support of such an alternative, since all previous coalition governments which founded on party prestige proved their incapacity to grapple with the economic fundamentals of the internal situation with respect to reparations.

With the wreckage of passive resistance confronting him, Chancellor Stresemann is said to be determined to put into immediate effect a program of drastic economic and salvational measures which will show scant consideration for the sensibilities of the employers of organized labor or the property classes.

With such prospects in view, it is believed the socialists would prefer to return to their oppositional positions in the reichstag, in preference to holding seats on the government bench.

MUNICH AND BAVARIA QUIET AND SERENE

Munich, October 1.—(By the Associated Press.)—Quiet prevailed in Munich and other points in Bavaria today.

A decree issued today by Dr. von Kahr, the military dictator, prohibits strikes and provides for penitentiary sentences to persons interfering with the operation of public utilities, or who carry out acts of sabotage, incite to strikes or perform acts of terror.

In case violations of the decree result in loss of life the death penalty will be imposed on the guilty persons.

CRISIS IN REICH IS EXPECTED

Berlin, October 1.—(By the Associated Press.)—A German parliamentary crisis is predicted today. Political circles say the socialists will withdraw from the government as a protest against the manner the party has been discriminated against in Bavaria that Chancellor Stresemann will form a purely bourgeois cabinet, retaining the chancellorship.

LONDON EXPECTS SPLAT IN REICH

London, October 1.—Profound anxiety and doubt as to the maintenance of the unity of the German reich is expressed in dispatches by British newspaper correspondents in Berlin.

"It appears at the moment that nothing but a miracle can hold the reich together much longer," says one correspondent, and his view is supported by several others. A break by Bavaria is written of as a certainty, but almost as a certainty. An opinion which is strengthened by the remarkable royalist demonstration that took place in Munich on Sunday day when Prince Rupprecht and his wife, attending a military memorial ceremony, are reported to have been acclaimed with frantic shouts of "long live our king and queen."

The central government, the dispatches say, is intrigued against not only by the nationalists, but by the socialists, and according to some of the writers the cabinet shows signs of immediate disintegration.

CENSORSHIP PLACED ON GERMAN NEWS

Berlin, October 1.—A censorship has been imposed on all military news sent from Germany.

REVOLT SUPPRESSED NEAR BERLIN

London, October 1.—A revolutionary movement against the national organizations has broken out at Kuestrin, 50 miles from Berlin, says a Reuters dispatch from the German capital.

The insurgents attempted to disarm the garrison and occupy the fortress, but the commander of the reichswehr arrested the nationalist leaders and drove back the attackers. Detachments of reichswehr from the fortress moved to Kuestrin, the dispatch adds, and the troops have been ordered to suppress the revolt ruthlessly. As a result of the insurrection, Dr. Geussler, the minister of defense, has imposed a censorship on all news of a military character.

Kuestrin, a city of approximately 20,000 inhabitants, is located in Brandenburg. The chief industries founded on party prestige proved their incapacity to grapple with the economic fundamentals of the internal situation with respect to reparations.

With the wreckage of passive resistance confronting him, Chancellor Stresemann is said to be determined to put into immediate effect a program of drastic economic and salvational measures which will show scant consideration for the sensibilities of the employers of organized labor or the property classes.

SECURITY POLICE HELD IN AMERICA

Dusseldorf, October 1.—(By the Associated Press.)—The German version of the outbreak at a separatist meeting yesterday in which 20 persons were killed and scores wounded, maintains that the security police, whom the French hold responsible for starting the shooting, made no move until the separatists had been killed by the separatist "self protection police."

This force, says a statement issued by the city authorities, attacked the blue police men, took away his sword, and had begun to beat him when the security police appeared. Thereupon a shot was fired, which wounded the man from the ranks of the separatists. This brought out the rest of the green force and the pitched battle followed.

Friends of the Rhineland separatist movement had made extensive preparations for the city authorities, who were 25 trainloads of "Rhineland republicans" came into the city from various Rhineland communities. Forming in a great procession the demonstrators, numbering about 15,000, but augmented to 40,000 from the ranks of the curious, marched to the Hildesheimstrasse, where a separatist leader, Joseph Matthews, began a speech.

He had said scarcely more than a dozen words when several shots were fired. As a small group made a rush for Herr Matthews the security police fired a volley. The shooting then became general, causing the death of 20 persons and wounding scores.

French troops to the scene. According to the French officers the security police refused to disperse the demonstrators, whereupon French cavalry surrounded the police barracks and after taking several prisoners succeeded in restoring order.

Meanwhile the separatists had become so aroused that they attacked the green police and it was only with difficulty that the military prevented further casualties.

The French stationed guards throughout the city and placed armored cars on the streets. The occupation authorities assert that the security police attacked the demonstrators without provocation. Three policemen, according to this source, were among those killed.

POLICE TO BLAME, FRENCH CLAIM

Paris, October 1.—The French troops which intervened in the disorders at Dusseldorf yesterday were only carrying out general instructions to the forces of occupation to maintain order in the occupied regions, it was said at the foreign office today. The French government, it was declared, is maintaining an attitude of complete detachment from the separatist movement and intends to take no encouragement whatever, but the troops will intervene whenever necessary whether the separatists, the communists or any other police group may be involved, in order to prevent violence.

The French military investigation in the Ruhr has established the fact that the German police used cool pigeons in the crowd at Dusseldorf yesterday to provoke disorder so as to give the security police a pretext to intervene at the separatist meeting.

it is asserted in a Havas dispatch from Dusseldorf.

The evidence, adds the message, indicates that former Provincial Governor Grottel was expelled from the barracks during the French examination of the security police.

"DON'T GET EXCITED," POINCARÉ WARNS

Bar le Duc, October 1.—"Don't let's get the hymn of victory too soon, and above all don't let the government get excited," said Premier Poincaré today in speaking to the council of the department of Meuse. He advocated moderation of the French enthusiasm over the surrender of the Germans. "We are far from having finished with our difficulties," the premier asserted. "They will be more numerous and graver in the future than in the past."

France, he added, conscious of her own strength, should wait patiently for Germany to show a real desire to begin her reparations obligations. Obviously referring to the rioting in Dusseldorf Sunday, M. Poincaré said: "Unfortunately our troops must guard the Rhine. They restore order even when disturbed by the Germans."

The premier referred to the population of Lorraine as more suspicious of the Germans than the rest of the French because the Lorrainers did not forget the Rhine. They restore order even when disturbed by the Germans.

"Decidedly our German neighbors have not changed. The treaty by which they guaranteed Belgian neutrality was for them only a scrap of paper. The treaty of Versailles seems to have no more value in their eyes. There are persons who believe the Germans have returned, but we who are in a position to obtain first hand information, see that they already have forgotten their defeat."

Berlin, continued the premier, had tried to bargain for its surrender, which was inevitable, but was finally obliged to recognize its inability to continue resistance. But added M. Poincaré, "it surrounded this avowal with hostile comments, false assertions and lying accusations, and in addition he 'seized' the word 'surrender' in a vague and equivocal terms that the ordinances and decrees of resistance were withdrawn."

THREE SUBURBS TO VOTE TODAY ON ANNEXATION

Point will be open from 7 o'clock Tuesday morning until 7 o'clock Tuesday evening. Polls in Hapeville will be open from 7 o'clock this morning until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The merger hinges on East Point's vote. Under the charter amendment providing for the election, neither of the other two suburbs can be annexed unless East Point votes for annexation.

The meeting was open to speakers from both sides but only one, Guy Parker, East Point city attorney, appeared to oppose the step. Captain J. C. Jewell, who presided, was forced several times to appeal to the crowd to give Mr. Parker a hearing. Questions were hurled at him from all sides and the temper of the crowd seemed to be strongly against his stand.

Mayor Walter A. Sims, Alderman J. K. Bachmann representing the twelfth ward which was created by the merger of Kirkwood last year, former Councilman Harry Goodhart and E. Barker, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, appealed to the East Point people to vote to join in with the great forces that are driving Atlanta forward and to share alike with other parts of the Gate City of the South.

Alderman Bachmann predicted his appeal on the experience of the recently annexed Kirkwood section and was greeted with storms of applause as he drew nearer the East Point-Hapeville-College Park merger and the Kirkwood merger, which he declared has proved to be the best thing that ever happened to Kirkwood.

Mayor Sims declared that within ten years Atlanta would embrace all of Fulton county, he asserted that it is the country's fastest growing city and is destined to be one of the great cities of the world, and he urged his hearers to join in Atlanta's prosperity.

The mayor mailed several campaign rumors. He promised adequate police, fire, sanitary and schools service. "I will use any specific promises, and you know it," he said, "but you'll share with us in everything we have. We will not force you to children to go to Atlanta for junior high schools; we will not force you to come to Atlanta to pay your water bills; we will lower your taxes and we will give you more of your money back. We won't be a circumstance to the good you all will enjoy."

Administration's Attitude. The mayor set at rest all doubt as to what the administration's attitude will be toward office holders under the present municipal governments of East Point, College Park and Hapeville.

"Every man who earns his hire for your towns will have a job just as good with the city of Atlanta, and maybe better; but we have no more jobs left for people with nothing but political pull; most of that kind have already been abolished in Atlanta and they are going to stay abolished."

"A fireman or a policeman or a sanitary department or construction department worker or any other man in public service in any of the three suburbs who renders efficient service, is going to be needed to render that service if these municipalities come into Atlanta; but the people are not going to be asked to give up their jobs to hire any other kind of employees."

Alderman Bachmann told the voters that the people of Atlanta through long years have accumulated great civic possessions in which the new citizens will share equally when they become part of the population of Atlanta.

"We have the great Henry W. Grady hospital for those of us who are hurt or sick and who need to pay attention; we had those sort of people in Kirkwood two years ago, and they went unattended or became a burden to their friends; and they go to Grady; you have that sort of people here who need Grady."

"We have a $10,000,000 waterworks system in which you will share equally, although you have not borne the burden of building it."

She recalled a shooting affair after which police came to her home to borrow a pistol to use in pursuit of a man who had done the shooting. The wounded man was the only witness and could not be found, but the assailant was released from jail next day because the city law forbids keeping a man in jail more than 24 hours without being identified as a party to the crime.

Mrs. Smith asserted that the mayor of East Point himself sends his son to school in Atlanta and demanded for all East Point children the advantages of the same school system the mayor's son enjoys.

Mrs. Smith was applauded heartily at frequent intervals during her talk.

Justice Bench Is Chosen As Laboratory of Speed

Doctor and Jurist Collaborate in Search of Microbe Which Causes Traffic Violations.

Chicago, October 1.—Speeders' court here was converted into a psychiatrist's laboratory Monday, and each traffic law-breaker, arrested in a week-end round-up, was grilled severely in a psychoanalytic test, in an effort to determine why apparently sane Chicago folk insist upon stepping on the gas or driving on the wrong side of the street.

When court opened, a keen-eyed, alert little man seated himself on the bench beside Judge John F. Haas. As Elmer Nelson, charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, took the stand, the little man scowled at him from beneath heavy eyebrows, his gaze seeming to pierce the innermost thoughts of the accused as every word and move was analyzed. He was Dr. David J. Jones, city physician, and a noted alienist.

"What would you advise, doctor?" the judge inquired, turning to the physician, after Nelson had admitted taking a few drinks of home brew Saturday night.

"Chronic alcoholic type," the doctor snapped. "Very nervous; a dangerous man to operate a car. I'd give him at least $40 and costs."

Judge Hikes Fine. "I believe you are right, doctor, but I'll raise it to $150," the judge replied. Then in addition he "seized" Nelson to the water wagon for a full year and prescribed that he go to church every Sunday during that time.

Dr. Jones will sit with Judge Haas for several weeks, making his tests by observing types and questioning speeders. He will analyze the various cases as to education, history and mental alertness, and when his tests are completed he will draft recommendations proposing state examinations for all applicants for automobile licenses.

"There are two distinct mental types," Dr. Jones told the judge, as Grover Heiran, was arraigned for reckless driving. "One is intelligent, alert and craving excitement; the other is sluggish and inactive. From the first come the more dangerous speeders, and the second are just lazy. Now this man is one of the excitable kind; he is a trouble maker. Think he owes the road, and carries a chip on his shoulder. Easily excited."

So the judge gave Heiran $50 and costs. Morris Blackman told the court he did not see a traffic signal to stop. "That type doesn't mean any harm," Dr. Jones said. "They don't deliberately violate the laws, but they're half asleep all the time." Blackman drew $5 and costs.

FATHER WILL AID IN THE DEFENSE OF MRS. JUSTISS

C. M. Combs, of Moreland, father of Mrs. Ollie Combs Justiss, who is awaiting trial in Fulton superior court, for slaying her sweetheart, De Witt Turner, arrived in Atlanta, Monday, and after conferring with his daughter at the Fulton tower, and attorney Murphy Holloway, announced that she will be arraigned next week. The date of the trial will be set Tuesday, it was stated. It is likely that she will be arraigned next week. In the meantime she is being held in the tower where she has been since the tragedy.

Old Confession In Phagan Case Is Made Public

Following a rumor recently current in the city that there had been "new developments" in the case of ten years ago, involving the slaying of Mary Phagan, girl employee of the National Pencil company and the conviction of Leo Frank, manager of the company, an old confession was brought to light in which a negro, said to have been named "Freeman," laid the crime to Jim Conley, negro porter at the factory.

At the time of the trial of Frank, the defense endeavored to prove that Conley committed the crime. The alleged confession of the negro, said to have been reported to have been made at the federal penitentiary here when the negro thought he was dying. It was made to Dr. J. Calvin Weaver, Atlanta physician, who reported it to John M. Slaton, then governor of the state.

Dr. Weaver, Mr. Slaton and Judge Davidson, of the state prison commission, Monday verified the fact that there had been such a confession made, but stated that the confession was in the negro's story had discredited it. As is usual with all criminal cases which attract wide attention, there was a flood of false charges, statements and "confessions," in connection with the Phagan slaying.

Leo Frank was convicted and sentenced to hang for the murder, but his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by Governor Slaton. Shortly after Frank had entered the state prison at Milledgeville, to begin serving his sentence, he was taken from that place at night by an unidentified body of men, carried to a house in the city, and there hanged. In the Freeman confession, the negro flatly accuses Conley of the crime and says he was playing cards with Conley in the basement of the factory on Memorial day, the day of the crime.

NO SEVERE COLD SPELL EXPECTED HERE FOR DAYS

There is no need to fear severely cold weather for some time to come, according to G. F. von Hermann, the local forecaster. Monday he predicted that Atlanta would enjoy fair weather Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, with generally pleasant conditions atmospherically for the entire week.

However, though October 1 did not bring any intensified realization of winter coming in so far as the weather was concerned there was another reminder to all lovers of good things to eat, in the fact that Monday marked the beginning of the open season for possums and squirrels. According to Georgia law, possums may be caught any time between October 1 and February 1. Cat squirrels are legitimate prey between October 1 and March 15, but the bag in this latter case is limited to 15 per day.

Georgia yams may be trailed to their lair in the potato patch, trapped, caught and eaten any time during the year without violation of the law. Therefore there is no reason why the most succulent affinities of the dinner table, possum and taters, should not nestle together on anybody's platter from now on.

WOODWARD WILL CASE Hearing on Contest Is Set for Monday.

The will of the late James G. Woodward, four times mayor of Atlanta, which was contested in court proceedings instituted last Saturday by his daughter, Mrs. James M. Renfro, will be aired before Ordinary Thomas H. H. Renfro Monday, it was announced yesterday.

The estate, valued at approximately $800,000, was divided between Mr. Woodward's widow, who was left $750,000 and the residence in which she resides, and the Union Printers' Home, in Colorado. The major portion of the estate was bequeathed to the home.

Mrs. Renfro was cut off without a dollar, the provisions in the will for her being cancelled on account of an estrangement with her father several months ago.

NEW OLDSMOBILE SIX ATTRACTS MOTORISTS

Ever since the doors were thrown open Monday morning, the showroom of the Olds Motor Works at 264 Peachtree street has been thronged with enthusiastic motorists, anxious to examine the latest achievement of the General Motors corporation, the new Oldsmobile six, the arrival of which was announced in The Constitution Sunday.

A suitable setting for the new "wonder car" has been provided under the direction of Mr. Craig, Atlanta branch manager, the showroom being tastefully decorated with amplex and palms, and during the evening an orchestra added to the enjoyment of the visiting throngs.

Mr. Craig stated that by actual count, more than a thousand people had viewed the new models on Monday and that he is satisfied that before the week is out that orders will be in excess of the initial allotment of the new Oldsmobile Six for this branch.

"The fact that a car of this quality sells for $750 at the factory has opened the eyes of the motor buying public in Atlanta," Mr. Craig said Monday night, "to the fact that one no longer has to spend in excess of a thousand dollars in order to secure the smooth, quiet and powerful car of control found only in a well designed, correctly balanced six-cylinder car."

Macon Dentist Carries Battle To Appeal Court

Macon, Ga., October 1.—The fight of Dr. A. A. Yarbrough, prominent local dentist, to secure dismissal of the charge of riot made against him in connection with the slaying of W. Q. Barnett, harness manufacturer, today was moved from the Macon city court to the Georgia court of appeals. Attorneys for the dentist filed a writ of habeas corpus and a bill of exceptions to an order by City Judge Will Gunn overruling a demurrer of the defense at the outset of the recent hearing which ended in a mistrial.

The demurrer asserted that the charge against Dr. Yarbrough, promulgated by the state, was not a crime, but a civil wrong, and that the state was attempting to circumvent the law by charging a civil wrong as a crime. The jury which heard the case stood 3 to 3 for conviction when it was dismissed.

At the same time that the attorneys announced the appeal on behalf of Dr. Yarbrough, J. P. Durkee, organizer for the Ku Klux Klan here, who is charged with rioting in connection with the slaying of R. F. Mills, shipwright, on November 19, 1919, filed a motion in city court demanding immediate trial. Under the law he must be tried either at the present term or during the December term of the court.

NINTH WARD CLUB FAVORS EXTENSION OF FOREST AVENUE

Extension of Forrest avenue to the Southern railroad and into Linwood avenue was the principal project under consideration at the meeting of the Ninth Ward Civic association meeting Monday night at the Highland school auditorium. Pres. Huddleston, newly-elected president of the organization, presided.

Dr. T. J. Vaughn, both of the fourth ward, addressed the meeting and spoke in favor of the extension. Fourth ward citizens would be affected by the proposed change since the extended thoroughfare would run into fourth ward territory. Horace Russell, of the ninth ward, also spoke in favor of the proposition.

The following were appointed chairmen of the committees: George W. West, membership; T. G. Champion, finance; N. D. Roberts, streets; A. B. Tumlin, police and fire; Arthur L. Brooke, highways and roads; R. H. Jones, Jr., sewers and drainage; Mrs. Hal Miller, ordinance and registration; Parks Russ, publicity; J. C. Curran, public service; R. H. Whitehead, parks, and Mrs. J. C. Malone, parent-teacher.

Disregard of Law Scored in Charge Of Judge Sibley

Declaring that laws are being flagrantly violated and that there is a greater disposition on the part of people than even before to ignore the courts, Federal Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of district court, in charging the grand jury for the October term Monday, called attention to the lawlessness now existing in the state of Oklahoma, which he stated was an example of "general disregard for the laws."

Making references to the so-called "crime wave," the judge stated that in his opinion one of the principal causes for this situation is "reversion of the laws by both good families and bad families."

"There is a greater disposition on the part of people to make light of the law," asserted Judge Sibley, "and I have never witnessed such flagrant violations of the law as during the present time. The state of Oklahoma is a fair example of the lawlessness that prevails over the country and Oklahoma is not alone in this regard."

"There are numerous violations of the prohibition laws and it would seem that there is a rise organized to evade this statute. There is much propaganda published in magazines and newspapers which tends to increase these evasions. Something must be done to curb this tendency."

There are approximately 500 criminal cases on the docket, the majority charging violations of the prohibition laws. It is expected that the entire month will be consumed in clearing up the criminal docket.

LARGE HALL COUNTY STILL IS DESTROYED

One of the largest and most elaborate distilleries for making illicit corn whisky, ever found in the state, was destroyed in Hall county by Prohibition Agents J. H. Gastley and J. H. Kinsey, according to an official report filed with Director Fred D. Bismark, Monday.

The distilling outfit was equipped with 12 fermenters and two brick furnaces, and was capable of turning out 200 gallons of whisky at a single operation. About 10,000 gallons of fermented mash and a large quantity of sugar and raw materials was confiscated.

FLETCHER NAMED TEMPORARY HEAD OF U. S. PRISON

Deputy Warden L. J. Fletcher, of the Atlanta federal penitentiary, Monday was commissioned to act as warden for a period not to exceed 30 days, until a successor has been named to succeed J. E. Dyche, who has resigned last week to accept an appointment with the prohibition forces in Missouri.

It is understood that Albert Sartin, of Columbus, Ohio, also personal friend of Attorney General Daugherty, will succeed Dyche. Mr. Sartin left Atlanta Sunday for his home after a short visit to the prison here. Hebert Votaw, superintendent of prisons, who is presiding over the parole board at the local prison, declined to comment on the appointment. He is still in Atlanta.

Fight Over Bond Lands Both Men In Police Station

Charges of disorderly conduct Monday afternoon were docketed against P. P. Jackson, of 312 Central avenue, and A. O. Derrick, 25, of 200 Lee street, as the result of fight between the two men when the former attempted to take the latter to police station. Jackson made his bond, but Derrick was held in jail.

Jackson, who is a professional bondsman, says that he tried to take Derrick to police station, because he had heard that the latter was planning to leave town, forfeiting $300 bond signed by Jackson. Both men were out and bruised about the face and body and made cases against each other.

"Forum" Features Story by Borglum On Great Memorial

Gutzon Borglum's conception of the great Stone Mountain Confederate memorial, and his own recital of studious difficulties which had to be overcome before it was possible to begin actual work of carving on the mountain, form the subject of an interesting article by the noted sculptor in the October issue of "The Forum" magazine which went on the newsstands Monday.

Mr. Borglum gives a brief history of the project from the day in 1915 when he came to Atlanta at the request of Mrs. C. Helen Plane to consider a plan of the U. D. C. to carve on the side of the mountain a statue of General Robert E. Lee. He recites the difficulties of an engineering and sculptural nature which confronted him at the outset of his proposal to carve a panorama portraying the entire military forces of the Confederacy instead of a single figure representing General Lee.

In a prefatory note the editor declares the memorial will "make Atlanta the mecca for tourists from all nations."

METHODISTS GIVE DECATUR ORPHANS $6,000 SUNDAY

Atlanta Methodist churches Sunday contributed more than $6,000 to the Decatur Methodist Orphans' home, according to estimates made Monday by W. O. Fouts, treasurer of the orphans' home committee. Returns are yet incomplete, but the total from three of the largest churches was $4,200.

Methodists for a number of years have observed the Saturday preceding the orphans' collection as "work day" and have contributed the wages received for that day to the home. St. Mark's Methodist contributed $1,700, First Methodist $1,000 and Druid Hills, $1,500, a total of $4,200 to date. Other reports are expected to reach the treasurer of the orphans' home committee Tuesday.

Double-Duty Dollars

"The revival of construction work, in private dwellings, public buildings, office buildings, highways, and railroad equipment has been a leading influence in the revival of business during the past year, and the fact that this work is reasonably certain to go on throughout 1923 is the most substantial assurance that general business will continue active throughout the year."—From monthly letter on Economic Conditions, National City Bank of New York.

During 1922 the house of G. L. Miller & Company provided, through the sale of Miller First Mortgage Bonds, millions of dollars to be used in erecting office and commercial buildings, apartment structures, and hotels in cities throughout the South. What was the result of this financing?

For one thing, there was a great, permanent addition to the South's store of tangible wealth—for the buildings thus financed represent one of the most valuable and useful forms of wealth;

Moreover, the South's stability and prosperity were advertised in a most convincing way throughout the nation, for the owners of Miller Bonds obeyed the natural, human impulse to tell other people about the place where they had found a good investment;

But most important of all—as the National City Bank of New York points out above, the revival of building activity, when business was "flat," had a powerful revivifying effect in every direction. Millions of dollars thus made available would at any time have accelerated trade—but millions made available in the critical early days of 1922 did more than that. They put in motion again the idle wheels of business and started economic recovery in the South while most of the country was still in the grip of depression. That is why we shall always regard the dollars which we brought into the South in 1922 as "double-duty dollars."

A famous statesman has said: "The great secret of life is to be ready when your opportunity comes." It was possible for us to grasp this opportunity to serve the South in 1922 because for years prior to that we had been persistently at work, making Southern First Mortgage Bonds a nationally known and nationally trusted investment. Through these bonds, the South is assured of a large flow of outside capital, whether business is slack or thriving. The effect will be to soften and shorten the slack periods, and to make the good years better.

Fair Is Planning For Entertainment Of Georgia Editors

One of the big features of the Southeastern Fair, which opens Saturday, will be the visit of the Georgia editors on Friday, October 12. Invitations have been extended to editors of every daily and weekly newspaper in the state to be guests of the fair association on that day.

Clark Howell, Jr., business manager of The Constitution, has been appointed by President Oscar Mills as chairman of the reception and entertainment committee, and he is now working out complete plans for the day.

At 1 o'clock Friday the visitors will be tendered a luncheon at the fair grounds. During the afternoon they will be escorted through all the exhibits, to horse races and midway attractions. Every possible attention will be shown them.

Governor's Day

Friday also will be Governor's Day. Governor Walker and his staff will be guests of honor and will be invited to the luncheon tendered the editors.

The opening day, Saturday will be one of the most interesting of the fair. Automobile races will be run in the afternoon. These events have attracted a great deal of attention throughout the south, as a number of the greatest drivers in America will participate. The track has been put in fine shape, and it is believed many dirt track records will be lowered.

Special attention is being given to Children's day on Monday, October 3. General Manager Striplin has prepared a program for the children of the young folks. All school children and college students will be admitted for fifteen cents on this day.

Live stock and cattle are arriving daily and are being assigned quarters. The grounds are swarming with workmen who are getting things in place for opening.

Registration of Babies

Today, Wednesday and Thursday will be devoted to registering babies whose parents intend to enter them into the baby show classic at the Southeastern Fair. There will be an extra force of clerks on hand, headquarters on the first floor at 77 Peachtree street.

The windows of the store being used are filled with baby pictures and make an unusually attractive display. It is estimated that at least five thousand people viewed this baby photo display Monday.

The Atlanta National Bank will give a twenty-five dollar bank book to the winning baby, and of course, the winning baby receives the blue ribbon loving cup handsomely engraved with the story of the triumph over hundreds of others at the Southeastern Fair, 1935.

Maier & Berkele, Inc., have donated the baby show prizes and now display them in their windows. The Thurston Hatcher studio are official photographers and the contest is paying the bill to have all the babies photographed.

The Khorassans, Kibla Temple, 123 and the Pythians are boosting this event in collaboration with the Southeastern Fair association.

The text of Governor Walton's statement which he issued with the new election call, follows:

"To the people of the state of Oklahoma:

"Because of the failure to comply with the law, as shown in my proclamation of today, I have refused to submit on October 2, 1935, initial measure number 70, known as the Campbell Russell amendment to the constitution, empowering the house of representatives to convene itself in extraordinary session to consider the impeachment of the governor and other elective state officers. It is neither the purpose nor the intention of the authors and supporters of said proposed amendment to use it to enable the house of representatives to fairly consider the issue whether or not I should be called before the bar of the senate to answer articles of impeachment, but on the hand it is a weapon the invisible enemy desires the people to put into its hands with which the Klan members of the house of representatives can strip me of the power to expose their crimes and cause them to be punished.

The pretended election tomorrow, October 2, 1935, will be void and null. But I notice in the morning papers that one McBee—the chief conspirator of the house, says that he and his associate Klan members are willing to abide by the vote of the people, and that they will not attempt to assemble, and he calls on me to likewise abide by the result. As the pretended election on initiated per number 70, tomorrow, will be null and void I refuse to recognize it or its results. Now since McBee and his associates seem willing to acquiesce in the verdict of the people, I hereby accept the challenge, and I have this day called an election on December 6, 1935, on which day the Campbell Russell amendment will be submitted to the people by proclamation this day issued here-with.

Will Remain 'Allen'

"If the people of this state want to amend their constitution so as to enable Klan members of the legislature to impeach their governor and other elective officers, let them thereby remove all legal restraint on the lawlessness of the Klan, then I submit that I don't want to be governor of this state. I want to be emperor of the invisible empire and its minions. Obviously, this presents an issue of the greatest consequence to the people and should be considered by the people with that deliberation essential to the exercise of sound and dispassionate judgment."

"Why this hate as to the Campbell Russell amendment? Can it be that disclosures of its crimes desire to get off the light of publicity? Is it afraid of the truth or does it thrive on lies? The people shall go to the polls and I shall abide their verdict. If the people prefer the invisible empire to their own government, that is for them to decide. I shall not be a part of people into two classes, subjects of the invisible empire and aliens, I shall remain an alien."

OFFICIALS PREPARE FOR OPENING OF POLLS

Oklahoma City, Okla., October 1.—Preparations for the opening of polls in virtually all parts of the state moved a pace tonight as the hour neared for an election unprecedented in the history of the state.

Court action upheld by the state of arms borne by citizens who volunteered for service under regular county authorities carried forward in several instances the preparations for the election. The will of the people as to whether the state legislature shall be empowered to meet to consider the Campbell Russell amendment to the constitution, without the sanction of the executive.

Barred by the governor through proclamation and hampered by the eleventh hour maneuvering of state and county election boards, the election tonight nevertheless was a virtual certainty throughout the state.

Even Governor Walton's action tonight in calling a new election for December 6, next, failed to halt preparations for the balloting tomorrow. Declaring that he did not want to be governor if the people "want to amend their constitution to enable the Klan members of the legislature to impeach him, thereby removing all legal restraint on lawlessness of the Klan," the executive reiterated his charge that the election tomorrow will be illegal but said he is willing to submit the question in a "fair and legal election."

Only the initiative bill empowering members of the lower house to convene at their own call would be voted upon in the December election.

Accept Executive Challenge.

Taking up the challenge of the governor that he would place a special state police at the polls tomorrow to prevent their opening, opponents of the executive staged a hasty campaign to provoke a premature election and with the authority of an official opinion from Attorney General George F. Short, holding the governor without power to change the date of the election, they obtained from the state at large today an expression of sentiment on the part of citizens and officials that constituted a strong denial of the executive's course.

From one county after another came the report that the authorities, ordered by the governor to prevent the election, had announced they would ignore his instructions.

Sheriffs throughout most of the state augmented their forces by deputizing hundreds of citizens who offered their services, and tonight balloting boxes from one end of the state to the other were being guarded by men who had taken up arms by the authority upon which the governor had announced he would rely to block the election.

At only one place in the state today was there an actual appearance of any of the special police whom the governor has promised to have on duty tomorrow. That was at Tulsa, where 12 of the governor's men, who sought to prevent the sending of ballot boxes and election supplies from the courthouse to the various election precincts, were driven from the building by a force of 200 heavily-armed special deputies under Sheriff R. D. Sanford. When the hour came for the removal of the boxes and supplies from the store room, Sheriff Sanford ordered the governor's representatives to leave. They departed quickly, leaving his master strike, the governor at noon reconstituted the state election board, and with two members friendly to his program, constituted a majority. Orders were sent to all county boards to halt the election.

Election Supplies Guarded.

But the election machinery, caught and in least two counties the sudden thrust, could not be stopped and the scope of the re-organization was extended late in the day to include the county boards as well as the state.

Then the courts entered the fight in at least two counties the executive's plan was nullified by injunctions restraining the new board members from interfering with the work of the old board. This was in Oklahoma City and Ardmore.

Sheriff Tom Cavan, of Oklahoma county, early in the day announced that he would not follow the instructions from the governor. All day his office was swarming with residents of Oklahoma City who volunteered their assistance in ensuring the election and tonight 2,800 commissions had been issued, with the work still proceeding at high speed.

Corridors of the courthouse were thronged with his special deputies when late in the day boxes and supplies started moving to the precinct building places. Each was guarded by heavy guard, which is to be maintained until the vote is tabulated early Wednesday.

O. A. Cargill, mayor of Oklahoma City, issued orders to every man on the city police force not to interfere with any citizens of Oklahoma City in the free exercise of his or her rights of suffrage and to "cooperate with the county officials in the protection of election officials in the discharge of their duties."

MAYOR DENIES LAWLESSNESS CHARGE.

Bartlesville, Okla., October 1.—A telegram expressing "great surprise" at allegations of lawlessness in Washington county, and denying that such conditions obtain, was dispatched to Governor Walton today by F. N. Buck, mayor of Bartlesville, and representatives of several civic and commercial organizations.

The telegram was in reply to a message made public last night by the governor charging that because of influence of the Ku Klux Klan law enforcement of the county, was inefficient and lives and property of citizens unsafe. The message which the governor made public was signed by sixteen residents of Washington county.

The telegram from Mayor Buck and others follows:

"The people of Bartlesville and Washington county are greatly surprised at the statement of alleged disorder prevailing in this county. Quite to the contrary, for more than one year the records will show a steady decline in practically all kinds of offenses. Conditions are normal and there is no justification for said alleged report."

Division of Funds

Under the law, one cent of the three cents to the state highway department, one cent goes to each county in proportion to its state road mileage, and one cent to the treasury until the rental warrants are all taken up. After that time, this cent will also go to the state highway department.

John M. Holder, chairman of the highway department, in commenting upon the new tax on Monday, stated that he believed the department had made a program to build a good building for 1934 which would convince every citizen of the state that it is giving a full dollar's worth of road work for every dollar expended.

An inquiry was made by Mr. Holder, "to see this additional revenue for better roads in Georgia." The road building problem is the one in which the state is most interested, and I am naturally pleased to see any additional opportunity for additional highways in Georgia."

Will Cooperate

Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Brown, stated that the new tax would affect his department at all, officially, but he had given instructions that all oil inspectors of the state were to cooperate, whenever needed, with the tax collectors in checking up on the amount of gasoline which enters Georgia. Mr. Brown pointed out that by this means it would be possible to make it practically impossible for any gasoline to enter the state without paying the tax.

He also showed how, with the half cent inspection tax now imposed, the state is collecting three and a half cents per gallon. Inasmuch as payment for inspection is limited by law the cost of collecting, as well as inspecting and policing against inferior quality of adulteration, amounts to only one tenth of a cent per gallon.

Last year the one cent tax on gasoline paid into the state treasury more than $600,000, while the half cent inspection fee yielded, above the cost of inspection paid in salaries to inspectors, more than a quarter of a million. The consumption of gasoline is anticipated as very much higher in 1934 than it was in 1933.

County Enjoins TO SAVE ELECTION

Ardmore, Okla., October 1.—An injunction restraining new members of the county election board, appointed by the Oklahoma City board, from interfering with the election board, was granted by Judge W. F. Freeman in state district court late today.

The injunction restrained the following men:

Governor J. C. Walton, Buck Garrett, Adjutant General B. H. Markham, Dan Blackman, J. H. Langston and Joe Taylor. The last three were appointed by the governor's new state election board this afternoon.

RESTRaining ORDER ISSUED AGAINST WALTON

Oklahoma City, October 1.—A restraining order enjoining all military and civil officers from attempting to remove from office any members of the Oklahoma county election board, was granted late today by Judge George W. Clark in state district court.

Representatives of Governor J. C. Walton were present at the hearing, "excluding the members of the board from exercising the functions of their office" and from threatening, intimidating or displaying force in the presence of or against the members of the board or interfering in any way with their performance of duty with respect to the election.

The injunction also barred them from "destroying ballots or supplies," from "going in or about the polling places" and from "in any way interfering with any voter at any of the polls."

Unmasked Negro Robs Drug Store Of $25; Escapes

An unmasked unidentified negro bandit late Monday night held up A. Antonio, owner of a drug store at 28 Highland avenue, took $25 from the cash drawer, and escaped. A description of the negro was furnished by officers Sibley and Lowe who answered the call.

Antonio reported that the negro came into the store, covered him with a pistol, took the register, taking all the money in it. He then hastily left before the alarm could be sounded.

Elaborate Supper Given to 'Kamela' Friends and Members

Mrs. Frances Johnson, of 250 East Lake drive, entertained members and friends of the "Kamela" with an elaborate supper Monday night. Short addresses were made by Mrs. M. J. Stallings, Mrs. C. T. Osborn and John Wilson.

Decorations were in the shape of crosses, and the tables were set with a diamond pattern. The table gave the appearance of a great fire cross.

BALLOON DROPS ON GEORGIA SOIL

perance the commanding officer of Fort McPherson, near Atlanta, dispatched a detail to Woodstock to guard the blimp. A wire was dispatched to Chanute field, describing the blimp's appearance.

Examination of the cabin disclosed a number of blank requisitions for gasoline and oil, together with a motor car. These papers bore the date of the Illinois aviation field and were the only means of partially following the direction from whence it came.

W. D. Powers, a rural mail carrier out of Woodstock, Linton Dean, Woodstock druggist, and Roger Rusk were among the first of local citizens to reach the dirigible after its unceremonious landing. Hundreds of citizens from the vicinity assembled at the spot where the balloon was moored during the day.

Bellefonte, Ill., October 1.—Officers at Scott field in the small dirigible balloon bearing the inscription "U. S. A. balloon No. 1," found near Woodstock, was the same that got away near here yesterday when Lieutenant Dache Reeves and his mechanic were forced to land.

Georgia Gas Tax To Bring Revenue Of $2,250,000

It was estimated by tax officials at the capitol on Monday that the additional two cents per gallon tax on gasoline will result in a revenue to the state of approximately two and a half millions annually.

The tax, which went into effect on Sunday midnight, has added two cents to the retail price of gasoline to all consumers, and the money is to be devoted to building of roads and amortization of the Western and Atlantic rental warrants.

Division of Funds.

Under the law, one cent of the three cents to the state highway department, one cent goes to each county in proportion to its state road mileage, and one cent to the treasury until the rental warrants are all taken up. After that time, this cent will also go to the state highway department.

Trial in Bullard Case Will Open Next Wednesday

Marietta, Ga., October 1.—(Special.)—Judge D. W. Blair, of the Blue Ridge judicial circuit, has set the case of Mrs. Ruth Burnett Bullard and Sim Edwards, accused of attempting to murder D. D. Bullard on July 9 for 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. The judge will dispose of a number of other criminal cases on the docket, and then will open the main trial on the program of the special session of the court.

The term of the court was especially called for the trial of the Bullard case. Owing to the collapse of Mrs. Bullard in August a postponement of the trial was granted until this month.

Bullard was mysteriously shot while asleep in his home at midnight. His hands were lacerated and he received a deep gash over the head through the discharge of a shot gun at close range. His wife who lay beside him claimed that an unidentified man entered their bedroom through an open window and disappeared after he had fired the shot at her husband.

The day after the shooting the father of the injured man, W. D. Bullard, swore out warrants against his daughter-in-law and Sim Edwards, charging them with a conspiracy to put his son out of the way.

Bullard himself, while recovering in the Marietta sanitarium, said that he had strong suspicion that Edwards and his wife had been plotting to take his life.

Mr. Bullard, whose health has been restored during her stay at her father's place in Powder Springs, did not appear at the court house Monday morning, as news of the postponement of the trial had been brought to her. Her attorney, John T. Dorsey, said that she could be brought on at a moment's notice. Edwards was in Marietta on Sunday discussing details of his defense with his attorney Judge Newton Morris.

New Heads Elected For Florists; Honor Retiring Officers

Election of officers and presentation of gifts to retiring officers of the Atlanta Florists and Horticulturists' club featured a buffet supper Monday night at the chamber of commerce.

E. A. Wachendorf, retiring president, who was re-elected vice-president, was presented with a set of golf clubs; S. S. Gibbs, retiring secretary, was presented with a set of golf clubs, and C. V. Hohenstein, who was re-elected executive secretary, was presented with a large basket of flowers. Mr. Gibbs refused to run for reelection. Other officers elected were W. H. Gibson, secretary, and Mrs. J. S. Garfield, treasurer.

PREPARE TO OPEN FLOYD FAIR TODAY

Rome, Ga., October 1.—(Special.)—Everything is in readiness for the opening Tuesday morning of the Floyd county fair, which will be held for the second year under the auspices of the Floyd county farm bureau.

There is every indication that the success of last year, when the fair was a financial success for the first time in history, will be repeated this week. With the exception of the live stock exhibits, which hardly measure up to the showing of last season, there is a large increase in the number of exhibits of every sort. There will be 11 community exhibits, staged by rural schools of the county, against three last season, and there has been almost a large increase in the number of individual exhibitors. This is due, it is thought, to the fact that the cash premiums this season are almost twice as large as ever before.

A feature which will attract much attention this year is the industrial "exposition" which has assumed worth-while proportions for the first time. There will also be an automobile show staged by local dealers.

Every exhibit at the fair will be of Floyd county products; only Floyd county babies can enter the baby show; only Floyd county horses will take part in the five-day racing program; and even the grandstand has been spent in staging the fair, has been spent in Floyd county except approximately $1,000 paid to circus entertainers.

New Shorter Teacher.

Rome, Ga., October 1.—(Special.)—Miss Marie Futch, M. A. of Baylor university, Waco, Tex., has been added to the Shorter faculty and will assist the two other instructors in the romance language department.

Rural Schools Open.

Rome, Ga., October 1.—(Special.)—Floyd county's rural schools began their fall term today. The attendance is not as large as would be the case were it not for cotton picking, which is at its height here now. There is said to be a movement on foot to have the school open later next year to prevent this interference. Several members of the board of education favor a summer session to replace the first two months of the present fall term.

Faces Six Charges.

Rome, Ga., October 1.—(Special.)—Oscar Copeland, white, Floyd county man, is in the county jail with a half dozen charges against him. It was arrested in Haralson county a week ago by officers of that and Floyd county, who lay in wait near a mountain retreat, where Oscar is said to cache illicit liquors on occasion. He was brought here to answer an indictment by the last grand jury and lodged in jail.

Friends of Oscar decided he had been in "duress vile" long enough and they appeared at the jail to sign his bond. They thought he was held on a single charge. Instead, they found there are four indictments against him, charging everything from possessing liquor to assault to murder; that there are two other federal warrants waiting to be served on him; and that in addition he is under sen-

M'KELLAR POINTS TO RUSS MARKET

Washington, October 1.—Establishment of trade relations between the United States and Russia is urged by Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, who issued a statement today describing some of the impressions gained while visiting in Russia recently.

"Russia needs our cotton in large quantities and our manufactured goods," said Senator McKellar. "We could have a trade relation with them, properly safeguarded against any interference with our government or its institutions, it might be wise and beneficial for both nations."

"I found that they have the most autocratic government in the world. The government owns all the lands, houses, factories, railroads, banks, telegraph and telephone lines, street cars and every other species of property. Apparently it is a stable government. The best of order prevails and, so far as one could tell from short stay there, the people are satisfied with it. The old nobility and the rich people have practically all been driven out."

Between 60,000 and 70,000 men are sent to the front.

Save to BUY Not to PAY

Atlanta will never be a thrifty city; America will never be a thrifty nation until we have learned to SAVE to BUY instead of SAVE to PAY.

Buying on impulse and going into debt for all or part of the purchase price destroys a great deal of the pride of possession. It is just as easy, and a great deal more satisfactory, to do your saving before the purchase is made, and you escape the nerve-racking worry of useless debt.

Save to BUY; Not to PAY

FORT WORTH PANTHERS BLAZED BY PELS IN 5TH GAME

Stribling, McTigue's Opponent, Has Unique Record

Macon Youth Has Engaged In 82 Fights During Short Career in Ring and Lost 3

Has Been Trained for World's Champion by Parents Since Early Youth—Is in Perfect Condition for Big Fight.

Columbus, Ga., October 1.—(By The Associated Press.)—In March of this year a sporting editor of Macon sent out a story in which it was stated that "fight experts from many of the big cities of the country who have visited the training quarters of W. L. (Young) Stribling here during the last few months predict that Macon's noted middleweight will be in the big show, meeting the best in the country, before he is 21 years of age."

Little did the author of that story dream, he said today, that now—only six months after the statement was published—Young Stribling would be concluding intensive training for a world's championship battle—not against "the best man in the country" alone but against the recognized champion of the world, Mike McTigue.

Stribling was 17 years of age and a middleweight then and certainly could not have been expected to meet any heavier than this division permits—a maximum of 160 pounds. However, today Stribling has passed beyond this classification. Scaling 165 pounds, he is five digits beyond the middleweight maximum and is ready to fight for the light-heavyweight championship—a youth of 18 meeting a veteran of 31, seeking to win the title from the conqueror of Battling Siki.

What has brought Young Stribling along so rapidly that a year before he has finished his high school course, he is fighting such an important battle with the stake a world's championship?

Pa Makes Statement. "Pa," Stribling, father-manager of the challenger, has been his constant companion and buddy since long before the Macon youth entered the boxing game as a profession, gave this statement:

"You can tell the world, if you think the world would be even a little bit glad to know that Young Stribling's splendid physical condition today is the result of proper living, regular habits, correct diet, consistent training and an inborn determination, cultivated by his parents, that some day he would be crowned champion of the world."

Young Stribling's parents have been athletes for many years. When Young Stribling was born in Bainbridge, Ga., December 26, 1904, his parents were "for the road," featuring an acrobatic act which had a long and popular run, not only throughout the United States but in Europe and far away China.

This partnership between the two parent-athletes soon grew into a larger firm for Stribling, Jr., at two years of age, had joined them in their act, taking a prominent part. "Pa" Stribling says that even before the youngster could stand alone, he was commiserated by his parents for the show and was a great favorite wherever the troupe went.

With the advent of Baby Stribling two years later, the three Striblings became the "Four Grammys" and as the younger boy also took well

MR. MCLWYN RACE WINNER

Lexington, Ky., October 1.—(By The Associated Press.)—Mr. McLwyn, owned by W. H. L. McCourtie, of Dallas, Texas, won the thirty-first renewal of the $7,000 division of the Kentucky Futurity at the opening of the fall program of Grand Circuit racing here this afternoon. Second heat time equaled the season's record for trotters, 1:06 1/4. Guy Richard, was second.

The Walnut Hall, third feature, was unfinished after three trying heats. Fawcett won the first in 2:03 1/4, coming with a stretch run. Heavens won the second in 2:03 1/4, a new record for the stake. Clyde The Great won the third in 2:03 1/4. A mix-up on the third turn placed Fawcett and Clyde The Great to finish behind the flag. The judges placed Fawcett and Heavens as the winners, but the latter judge, having reported that the latter was responsible for the accident.

STARVED HEARTS

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

CONSIDERING THE ACTION AND THE CHARACTER.

Stephen Lane, wealthy, middle-aged, dapper, has opposed his brother's marriage some twenty years before and now resents the guardianship of his orphaned niece, who has been reared in a French convent. Childless himself, he accepts her as the only heir, but determines to rule her with a tyrant hand as he rules.

Barbara, his lovely young wife who sold herself into a loveless marriage and is pitted by Ann O'Leary, spinster and lifelong enemy friend.

II. Enter Madelon.

Barbara Lane was dressed for the street. Her costume was faultlessly in mode. Rich furs wrapped her slim, frail loveliness.

"You are going out?" Lane's tone toward her was habitually grim.

Her great purple-black eyes sought his face anxiously.

"I was going to meet Madelon," she faltered.

Lane drew himself up in his chair. His eyes were accusative.

"You were going to a railway station."

Barbara sat motionless, a beautiful lay figure, her slim, white hands folded in her lap. It seemed incredible that she even breathed.

Presently a car flashed by the window, following the driveway to the porte cochere. The two in the library heard it come to a stop and the sound of Masters, the butler, opening the entrance door.

Lane looked up from his book. "I fancy Madelon has arrived."

Barbara rose with swift grace. "Shall I be the one to welcome her?"

He made a motion of dissent. "That is unnecessary. Masters will show her in."

"But this is her home-coming," Barbara was beginning.

"My dear Barbara, you waste too much time over trivial formalities."

Barbara sank back in her chair. After a moment Masters appeared in the doorway. His bearing was faultlessly correct, utterly impassive.

"Miss Lane has arrived, sir."

Before he had finished, and much to his discomfort, a slim, smiling girl pushed past him and came eagerly to Lane, gloved hands outstretched.

"You're my Uncle Stephen, aren't you? You've no idea how happy I am to find a home and real kin half way across the world."

Lane accepted one of the proffered hands.

"I am glad you have arrived safely, Madelon," he said stiffly. "Did you have a pleasant journey?"

The girl stood waiting with upturned expectant face. After a moment's hesitation, Lane bent and placed cold lips against her forehead.

Then he turned to Barbara, lingering in the shadow.

"This is your aunt, Barbara."

Madelon advanced hesitantly. Some of your buoyant assurance had dropped from her. But Barbara kissed her warmly.

"We're so glad you're here at last, Madelon. We've been looking forward to this for a long time, your uncle and I."

Warmth and joyous color flashed again into the girl's face. She was a slim, young creature with big, dark-lashed eyes clearly resembling the color of a Parma violet, so deeply, velvety, blue they were. They contrasted oddly with hair that swirled round her pretty, round face like an aureole. She was groomed in the height of Parisian fashion.

"Uncle Stephen," her eyes flashed mischief, her pretty voice was archly pleading, "there is a young man waiting outside in the car, such a nice young man, who was so kind on ship-board. May he come in?"

Lane's face hardened.

"Certainly not! Shipboard acquaintance are dangerous. . . . Barbara, please tell Masters to ask this young person to excuse Miss Lane. The car will take him wherever he wishes to go."

A look of dismay crossed Madelon's expressive face.

"But Uncle Stephen, I was so sure he would be welcome, that I asked him in myself. You see, he is not just a shipboard acquaintance. He is an old childhood friend of mine, whom I saw often at the convent. He was in the first place properly presented in Paris by my chaperon, Mme. Guilbert, who was a schoolmate of his mother's. Mr. Farley is an American architect who has been studying in Paris. You will find him . . ."

"Madelon," Lane's voice was hard as steel. "The first rule of this house is obedience. If you remain here, I shall expect you to observe it."

Madelon bowed her head mutely. Her eyes were dazed, half-frightened, like a child, unaccountably hurt.

In the end it was Barbara who prevailed upon Lane to receive young Duane Farley.

Clothing Gifts Are Asked Today To Aid Japanese

Every housewife in Atlanta is asked today to contribute all garments that can be spared from the home wardrobe to aid the people in Japan who have lost all their possessions in the recent earthquake shock that claimed an immense toll in lives and property.

"Bundle Day" by the local headquarters of the Salvation Army, and the people of Atlanta are urged to contribute to the cause with the most liberal spirit in order that not less than a carload of clothing and sewing materials may be sent to the Orient.

The King Hardware Company, with ten branch stores maintained in various sections of the city, has offered the use of these branches for the convenience of the public. These stores will be used as receiving depots by the Salvation Army, and women who have packages of clothing and sewing materials to give to the cause are requested to leave them wherever possible at one of the stores.

"Not only do we expect to find a most generous response to our appeal for the Japanese," said Captain Carter, of local headquarters, "but Staff Captain Braun, officer in command of the 'Bundle Day' collection in the southern division, expects this response to be general all over the south."

The crying need for clothes by the Japanese is made more than ever acute, it has been explained, by the approach of cold weather.

If it is not convenient to bring or send the packages to the King stores a Salvation Army truck will be sent for them upon telephone request to the social service headquarters of the army. The stores to be used as receiving stations today are located as follows: 135 Whitehall, 814 Peachtree, 145 Moreland, 202-431-772 Marietta, near corner of Gordon and Lee, West End; 122 Decatur and Peters street, near junction of Walker street.

Matthews-Zachry Bridal Party Entertained at Buffet Supper

Mrs. Dean Christopher and Mrs. Robert Humphrey were joint hostesses at a buffet supper Monday evening at the home of Mrs. C. B. Christopher in Druid Hills in compliment to Miss Mary Matthews and Wallace Preston Zachry, of New York, whose marriage will be an interesting social event of this evening, taking place at the home of the bride-elect's father, L. C. Matthews, on Fairview road.

Miss Woolley Will Assume Duties.

Miss Marguerite Trenholm Woolley has arrived in Atlanta to begin her duties as secretary of the National League of Women Voters for the third-region under the regional director, Mrs. Elliott Cheatham. As the third region includes the southern states east of the Mississippi, with the exception of Kentucky, it is appropriate that the new secretary should be a daughter of the south. Miss Woolley is a Virginian, born in Winchester, and a great granddaughter of Jefferson Davis, secretary of state. Her father is too well known as an editor and Washington correspondent to need mention, and his service in the interstate commerce commission is too recent to have been forgotten.

Miss Woolley spent part of her childhood at Lake Charles, Louisiana, and as her work will necessitate much travel through the south she will be meeting old friends not only in Louisiana but in the other states in which she has visited. She explains her interest in politics by saying that she cannot remember when she did not believe in woman suffrage. She votes in Virginia, though most of her time has been spent in Washington of late years, and she is convinced that the man or woman who can vote and does not vote is the worst of unpatriotic slackers. League of Women Voters leaders consider her one of their ablest young women.

Small Bridge Party At Terrace.

MAKING GOOD

We had the nerve to open an exclusive optical store in 1905. We had the ability to "make good." Anybody can make claims; "delivering the goods" is really what leads to success. We claim to have one of the soundest and most reliable exclusive optical stores in the states. We claim we use every endeavor to treat our patients courteously and fairly. We claim that the welfare of our patients is our first consideration—but the claim is only the smaller half. As to the larger half, ask any of the better oculists, physicians, or any of our patients. We are willing to risk our reputation on their judgment—they will tell you we have made good as an exclusive optical store. No side lines.

Discovering Things

We all like to discover things. A lady goes to town shopping and she finds a real bargain. How pleased she is! She tells all her neighbors about it. She wants them to share her good fortune.

In nine cases out of ten White House Coffee is a discovery. A grocer says to a customer: "Have you ever tried White House Coffee? It's fine." Or the customer sees the big square package and asks for it. Or she reads about it in the papers. Or, a neighbor tells her about its goodness.

White House Coffee is always a discovery. As soon as its fragrance permeates the dining-room. Even before you taste it you just know it's a mighty fine cup of coffee. And in the drinking it backs up its honored name.

Just ask your grocer to send you a pound of White House Coffee today. Then, you too will be telling your friends about it. White House Coffee makes friends everywhere. Be sure the "White House" is on every label. 1, 3 and 5-lb. packages only.

Since hundreds of years B. C. the Orange Blossom has been the emblem of life-long good fortune and the symbol of happiness. Orange Blossoms have to this day held a spot of sentiment in the hearts of folks the world over. The traditions that recall and the atmosphere of the truly beautiful they outwardly possess have come to signify a meaning that they alone can give. Their association with a thing so precious and sentimental as a beautiful pattern of Sterling silver is singularly appropriate and in the Orange Blossom Pattern of Wallace Sterling Silver, that appropriateness is expressed with a design that fairly breathes the fragrance of the flower and seems to hold within its charm the countless tales of age-old traditions that surround its name.

Puffed Rice

Airy, flavory morsels—a supreme delight

Quaker Puffed Rice is the finest breakfast dainty people have ever known. The grains are steam exploded—puffed to 8 times normal size. So each grain becomes a confection—a flaky, flavory puff. The food cells are exploded, so they easily digest. That is the reason for puffing. Thus Puffed Grains are the best-cooked cereals in existence.

Whole grains made enticing

Quaker Puffed Rice is whole wheat puffed. Over 125 million steam explosions are caused in every kernel. Thus these airy, toasted grains become delicious tidbits. No night dish is more welcome than Quaker Puffed Wheat in milk. And none is more important.

Whole wheat supplies 12 minerals which growing children must have. It supplies the needed bran. And milk is rich in vitamins.

Every housewife wants her family to eat more whole grains and more milk. Then serve them Puffed Grains morning, noon and night.

In the afternoon, crisp and douse with melted butter for children to eat like peanuts. Millions of people are better and since Puffed Grains were invented. Let your folks eat them to their hearts' content.

Drama League Play Tuesday Brilliant Event at 'Wingfield'

The Drama League will meet Tuesday afternoon on the lawn of "Wingfield," the home of former Governor and Mrs. J. M. Slaton, where it will present a little Spanish comedy and will elect officers for the year.

Mrs. Emma Garrett Boyd, who has served as president for three terms, declines to continue further in office, but a very delightful set of officers will be in charge for the year, among them Mrs. Slaton, the present vice president, on whose lawn the meeting will be held.

The league has had an unusually successful year and has a very good balance in its treasury. During the past year, it presented Miss Dorthea Spinnay in four costume performances of Greek plays and gave also lectures by Dhan Gopal Mukerji on India; Bert Johnson on American sculpture, and Mrs. Maude Lambert Taylor on her intimate friend, Robert Browning. The league gave also complete costume performances of four plays; a reading rehearsal of two others; reports on the dramatic revivels of the season in New York, and eight or ten programs with readings of worthwhile plays, several by professional readers.

A big luncheon at the Capital City club to the five stars in "The Circle" was one of its delightful social occasions. A weekly class with lectures and readings on "The Russian Drama" and "The Modern Woman" was conducted also by Mrs. Boyd, free to all members. Altogether, the year was one of intellectual and artistic pleasure, and the coming year promises to be one of great stimulus also.

The little play, "A Sunday Morning," to be given Tuesday, is a modern bit of Spanish writing and a delightful little comedy of manners. Cyril Smith as the crotchety old beau and Mrs. Clayton as the beautiful old belle do a bit of high comedy that is one of the most finished and amusing things ever yet presented by Atlanta amateurs. And Miss Eskins Jarnagin as the little maid and George Harrison as the man-servant fill out a most charming little picture.

The play will be given out of doors in a natural amphitheatre, if the weather permits; should it be rainy it will be given indoors in Mrs. Slaton's long drawing room.

The meeting begins at 3:15. Members may bring guests at fifty cents.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., N. Wayne, Ind.

ANSWERED LETTERS.

Miss H. D. E., Worried, F. F. P.—A hot oil massage the night before the usual shampoo will help the dandruff, and a daily vigorous massage of the scalp, which increases the circulation, will do much toward improving the whole general condition. A good hair tonic included with the massage several times each week will hasten the recovery. Hair falls out because it is dead, so there should be no apprehension over the loss of these hairs; and this will stop when the scalp is healthy when new hair will replace the old hair.

Brown Eyes, Brownie E. K., Atlanta, Miss M. B., Miss Catherine—To gain in weight, drink plenty of milk, use as much butter as possible, or take olive oil three times a day. If you dislike the taste of oil, take it with an equal amount of grapefruit. After the weather is cooler, take cod liver oil in place of olive oil. A simple lunch before retiring will also help. The object is to take as much nourishing food as you can assimilate, but never to a point of overtaxing the digestion.

Katherine—The only trouble that would ensue from using peroxide too frequently on your arms, would be that of drying out the natural secretions; but you will realize that yourself as your skin would become sensitive.

Katydin—Cleansing creams are what they imply, and are made from mineral oil which is only intended to soften the soil in the pores.

Mary Ann—A girl of 14-15 years who is 5 feet 3 inches in height, is normal weight from 100 to 110 pounds.

X. T. Z.—Use hot wet cloths on the parts covered with blackheads until you feel that the pores have been opened, after which massage cleansing cream into the skin to soften the soil in the pores. Remove this either by scrubbing with hot water and a fine soap, or by using the powder that comes for this purpose, and close the pores at the end of the cleansing process by rubbing a small piece of ice over the skin, or by dashing very cold water over it.

Blue Eyes—I do not think that you would be pleased with bobbed hair, when it has turned almost white, even though you are young enough to wear this style. If you care to use a tonic, I will be glad to mail you the formula for one that will help this condition you mention so your hair will stop falling out and come in again in a healthy condition.

M. J. P.—Build up the tissues of the hands by massaging them with a nourishing oil, but if your system is run down, your hands will show this under such circumstances the hands will fill out as you build up all over. Tomorrow—Weekend Treatments.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes, in care of the "Beauty Chats" department, will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

From the Arbor.

If you have Malaga grapes growing in your yard, try dipping some in melted fondant and set aside to harden. You have a delicious candy for any affair you wish to give during season.

Dancing Slippers.

Sometimes slippers appear to fit perfectly, but when we dance they develop a habit of riding down off the heel and prove very uncomfortable. Place a patch of adhesive tape around the inside of the slipper heel and see if that does not help this difficulty.

Coal Savers.

Be sure no air creeps in at the doors and windows. Weather stripping is worth its expense in these days of coal shortage.

Be certain the asbestos wrappings on your pipes are firm and that the heat is not escaping through them into the basement.

Be certain that the heating apparatus is in perfect repair before trying to fire up. Have the heater man look over the whole business when he comes to clean out the pipes for the winter.

What Women Wear

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Roses and Other Flowers Bloom on Muffs to Be Carried This Autumn.

Since milliners have gone into the business of making muffs there seems to be no limit to the variety of trimming that may be used upon them—the muffs, not the milliners.

The furrier brought up in the traditions of his trade often insists that choice peltry is best displayed with the greatest simplicity, certainly without the addition of artificial flowers or silk or other fabric adornment. But that does not prevent the women who set the pace in fashion from selecting muffs that are quite ornate. The sketch shows a muff of moleskin, with a little neckpiece to match, and both are trimmed with silver roses or green satin leaves. Both pieces are lined with green and silver brocade. This muff, following the lead of Chanel, who has made quite a good many muffs in wets, is white and flat—the shape generally accepted as standard for this season.

The success of this muff and collar set depends largely, of course, on the success of the simple tailored suit, although many a French woman makes use of some such set to add trimness to the coat frock as a street dress. Often the effect of unity of accessories that seems so desirable when wearing the more or less strictly tailored suit is gained by wearing a set consisting of hat and bag. Many of the American importers of millinery when making plans to copy successful models of French hats provided themselves with material sufficient to make matching bags as well. Lewis has made many interesting hats and his hat and light wrap that he has made for autumn might be called a set were it not actually only one piece. There is a small black velvet hat trimmed with a black lace shawl, which goes down the back and sides, with extensions at the side, to form sleeves with elastic bands in the wrists to keep it in position.

The scarf and muff set trimmed with flowers, sometimes with feathers, suggests a way of using a discarded fur coat. The muff itself need not be entirely of fur. For the muff might be made of plush, velvet, or even silk, with appliques or bands of the fur.

SEARCH FOR PURNELL WILL BE CONTINUED

Benton Harbor, Mich., October 1. The hunt for "King" Benjamin Purnell, missing leader of the House of David colony, will be continued. Attorney General Andrew Dougherty said today. Despite the failure of the searching party of Berrien county and state police officers to locate the cult leader at Shiloh house, his colony residence yesterday, Mr. Dougherty still believes Purnell is not far away. The attitude of the colony members Sunday convinced those who participated in the raid that with only a few exceptions, Purnell's followers remain faithful to their leader.

WITH AFTERNOON TEA.

Remember that some people never relish sweet wafers or cakes with afternoon tea. If you do not know the taste of those whom you have invited to drink tea with you it is well to plan two sorts of accessories—one sweet and the other not. For instance, for a simple afternoon tea you might have thin bread and butter sandwiches and other sandwiches with marmalade. The important thing in planning afternoon tea refreshments is to have everything dainty and of the best of its sort and not to select expensive and elaborate dainties. If you serve sandwiches or toast see that your butter is first-class. The bread for sandwiches should be cut evenly and thin and the crust removed. Offer it is attractive to cut these dainty little sandwiches in squares, oblongs or even in circles, hearts, diamonds, etc., by means of little cookie cutters. The bread that is cut from these shapes need not be wasted as it may be used to make dried crumbs or for bread puddings or scalloped vegetable dishes calling for bread crumbs.

Some persons like pastry wafers for afternoon tea. To make these roll the pastry quite thin. You will usually have enough left over from baking pies for this purpose. Cut the pastry in little rounds or any other attractive shapes. Prick each piece and bake quickly. Use the same day as baked.

From pastry wafers may be made cheese strips that are delicious with tea. To make them roll the pastry very thin and cut into strips an inch wide and about four inches long and bake. Have some sort of soft yellow cheese and work up with a little milk or cream until soft enough to spread. Now spread half the strips with the cheese and top with the other half to make sandwiches.

If you can make baking powder biscuits make some of these quite small. They should be cooked just before needed so they will be still warm when served. Split each and spread with a little butter.

Cinnamon toast is delicious with afternoon tea and most persons like it. To make it cut the bread evenly in medium thickness and cut off the crusts. Toast on both sides and while still hot spread with butter and sprinkle with a mixture of granulated sugar and cinnamon in the proportion of a teaspoon of cinnamon to a half cup of sugar. You can get the most food value out of wheat by eating bakings that are made from good plain flour. A dependable baking powder must be employed or you do not get the full nutritious value of the wheat—nor will your bakings be as palatable and easily digested.

The same results cannot be had if you use Self Rising Flour, or any so called ready-to-use substitute for plain flour and good baking powder. Food authorities and physicians agree that bakings that do not raise properly are bad for the health. Such foods are hard to digest and in time cause stomach trouble.

Mothers who are interested in the proper growth and health of their children (and all mothers are) should never use anything but a good brand of plain flour and a time-tested leavener such as Calumet—the economy Baking Powder.

Calumet has more than the ordinary leavening strength. It raises every baking to its height of nutritious value. It is pure and dependable—do not look for a substitute—there is none.

Use Calumet and be positive of wholesome nutritious and economical foods.

Next Week: "Treasure and Trouble Therewith."
By GERALDINE BONNER.

A man, his wife and their widow daughter constituted Sir Bruce's staff within doors. They were amiable natives; but when on one occasion I asked Timothy Bassett, my friend's factotum, certain questions concerning Grimwood he evaded any direct replies.

My inquiry was of the most innocent nature and concerned portions of the mansion and certain portions of it I had not yet seen. There were some famous ceilings of Italian workmanship in empty chambers, and a coat of arms dating from the time of the original possessors in Elizabeth's reign.

But though Sir Bruce had never shown me these things, they had been mentioned by him with a promise to do so. Then came an evening when my host himself returned to the matter and, in connection with it, uttered statements so extraordinary that I lay awake for the greater part of the night afterwards.

"You have not yet seen the curious coat of arms in the banquet hall," he began.

"But I look forward to doing so," I answered.

"It was painted in heraldic colors on the marble," he continued, "and a fragment of the illumination still remains upon the carving. The coat is three bats, or 'pale-mice' as the heralds call the three wings, which are displayed in pale one above the other. During my childhood that spectacle had for me a morbid fascination. It was as though the three wings were I was destined already beckoned me. Now I know much about bats."

"Surely all there is to know, Sir Bruce."

"Far from it—little enough compared with all there is to know. The legendary lore of the bat may have a significance after all, though science, of course, derides it. These 'monsters' as our forefathers held them to be—things impossible to place in the frank categories of nature—were thought to have been created after the transgression of Adam and doomed never to take their rank among those perfect works of the Creator which appeared before man's fall."

"The bat belongs to the 'peccata naturae'—the errors, or failures of nature. And among such may be included succubus, vampire and werewolf of the middle ages."

"As to living bats, I have seen them and studied them singly and in myriads. The bat haunts in certain ruined Italian temples, secluded from a later civilization and hidden among the jungles and forests of Nepal and the Sikkim, are amazing, horrible places."

"There I have observed these creatures attain to a size far larger than any I record, because their capture, or destruction, proved impossible. These greater varieties of the species possess extraordinary powers of a faculty of animal intelligence we only find in our domestic and highly developed mammals."

"My eyes grew round; but this was as nothing to what was to follow."

"Is it possible," I asked, "that you can believe in the things still often called 'the Bat'?"

He did not directly reply, but asked a question in return for mine.

"Have you ever seen a sheep-dog trial, Granger?" The dog is directed from a distance by his master to do certain things. These duties he performs with no more directions than his master's voice.

"I have heard of the marvelous intelligence, apparently akin to reason, displayed by sheep dogs," I answered.

Then he replied to my question. "There was a time when I did not believe in 'the Bat.' Now I do believe in it. After for the best of all possible reasons. I have myself seen it."

"I have seen this thing on a moonlight night flying above my own woods and over my own house," he went on. "It is somewhat larger than has been alleged. There was no mistake—my eyes are keen still for all their use. I am disposed to believe that more than one of these beings may exist; and I have set myself to examine the events of the past, and, if possible, arrive at some sort of explanation consonant with reality. So far as I can yet see, there is a solitary solution to this ghastly riddle—and that itself is ghastly."

Then, after a pause, he turned to me and directly addressed me.

"You will perceive now my purpose in mentioning the sheep-dog trials, Granger? I say that as the dog will obey a human master, so here, in this living organism we call 'the Bat,' there exists a mentality far higher than that of the dog, yet lower than the mentality of man—which can be trained and taught to obey. I conceive that this creature may be an abortive effort on Nature's part to develop conscious intelligence along a different line from that which produced man. She began and gave up—turning her attention in another direction."

"Thus we have a being—stranded on the way to something higher—a series broken—not a missing link, but the end of an incomplete chain! The gulf between this creature and ourselves, unknown men have in some measure bridged. They have discovered the monster, trained it, and instructed it to obey them; they have learned a means to convert their wishes to it; and, such is its own intelligence, that it has comprehended and is now operating and using its powers under human direction!"

"You will say that at Rome this creature was not associated with the deaths of the anarchists, or seen near its victims, though they perished under its attack. But what of that? We know what camouflage means in warfare and the significance of imitative coloring in nature. The chameleon reflects his surroundings and so 'the Bat' is probably better seen by night than in broad day."

Sir Bruce soon after pleaded fatigue and retired.

Two days later there came news that entirely preoccupied us; for the extraordinary information that then reached Grimwood, through the channels of the newspapers, appeared to support the extravagant opinions of Sir Bruce.

The unknown had struck twice in America, and "the Bat" had been observed by many witnesses.

CHAPTER XIII.
The Mask of "the Bat."

An eminent man had been assassinated in America—one upon whom the eyes of the New and Old World alike turned at this moment; and almost simultaneously were destroyed five New York buildings, all dedicated to one purpose: the advancement of human welfare. In a night the world was reduced to powder, and though the two events occurred widely separated in space, but few hours intervened between them.

The campaign for the Presidency of the United States had thrown to the surface of politics various Americans who were as yet only names to the average Englishman; but among these appeared Judge Greenleaf P. Stubbs, who, by his unsympathetic attitude to any convention of the League of Nations, had caused some consternation in the Chancellery of Europe.

This attitude depressed European thought not a little; but never was the practical world faced with a greater certainty. Already the betting stood at eight to one on Judge Stubbs.

The judge had gone, for a period of rest and holiday, to the neighborhood of Yellowstone Park, in his own state of Wyoming. There he was staying at a private hotel with his wife and family, and there, at sunset of a day near the end of August when walking along a canon he had met his sudden and horrible death.

The details monotonously echoed former events of a like tragic nature. An extraordinary circumstance centered in the united testimony of the judge's daughter, Audrey, and three other independent observers. All had seen "the Bat" almost immediately after the death of Judge Stubbs.

All four heard the stricken man's loud cry for help and while all were occupied with the dead, there ascended into the light of clear sunset a huge object of nature—wings, it leapt upward suddenly from a patch of heavy reed only thirty yards from the path; and the four who saw it agreed that the flight of the creature was flickering and zigzag after the manner of the bat kind, but inconceivably speedy. It ascended until little more than a smolder of light in the sky, then appeared to drift away up the canon and vanish into the fading splendors of sunset.

A dozen famous zoologists journeyed to Yellowstone Park. They discovered the spoor of huge, bird-like feet, each of which had three claws in front and a spur behind. Every indication of the triple claw was two feet long, and from the second pair of impressions, which were deeply stamped into the earth, the large bat sprang aloft, for no farther sign of him rewarded search.

Neither did the lair reveal a feather or hair, though every crumb of the spot was examined with scientific thoroughness.

Almost as soon as the news of this tragedy had spread to the ears of the earth, another atrocious event convulsed New York with fear and anger. About two hours after midnight, one saw another strange case at a distance of three miles, five great temples of the Christian Scientists fell to the ground.

In each case no harm was done to the surrounding property; but a terrific and exquisitely adjusted energy reduced the ornate and massive buildings to dust. Not a life had been lost, though many of the night police narrowly escaped entombment.

The world uttered a shout of anger. Public men spoke to large audiences, while publicists devoted columns of analysis to the things done and examination of the motives behind them. Some writers professed to see a logical sequence of ideas and a rooted, reactionary attitude, and in what manner the unknown's intellect actually operated. They held it to be of very modest dimensions and in every respect "behind the times."

A thousand suggestions, both idiotic and reasonable, saw print. Among these I was interested to observe, in a letter to The Morning

THE GUMPS—RING OUT THE OLD; BRING IN THE NEW!

Post, the identical theory that had so staggered me upon the lips of Sir Bruce a night or two before the outrage reported from America. The communication was signed "Veritas." I suspected that it came from his pen. Eminent writers outlined the possible direction of coming attack and urged that the future movements of "progressive" men should be kept secret as far as it was possible to do so.

Thus Fear crept into the community—the familiar, prehistoric dread of the Unknown—and a vague admonition of panic terror began to be felt, like a black thread running through the fabric of human affairs.

A contrary theory, that won wide acceptance from its initiation in the pages of a New York paper began to be accepted in many quarters. The writer who formulated this opinion declared that earth was, more or less, at the mercy of an evil but potent spirit, and the ranks of spiritualism agreed with him. Others pointed to those senseless manifestations familiar at seances of the Spiritualists, and suggested that, as these idle demonstrations were believed to be the work of beings on a low plane of the life beyond death—beings who often intruded among followers of the evil and, by horsplay and crazy antics, shocked the serious people assembled to get into touch with their dead—so now the world at large was faced with powerful but minor spirits permitted to re-enter the sphere of their ancient earth-life in a carnal though unfamiliar form.

As some of their unseen environment played pranks, rang bells, lifted furniture, sounded musical instruments and even tweaked living noses, it was argued, others, greater and far mightier, were now being allowed to return from the underworld and display this terrible power—for divine reasons as yet uncomprehended.

CHAPTER XIV.
The Voices of Man and Bird.
Sir Bruce, I found, established in the same strange opinions to which I had listened. He held that the most recent incidents supported him; and while, to my mind, as unreasonable as any of those who now confessed belief in the supernatural, he argued logically from his own standpoint.

"And do you still believe that the thing works for itself, or others, Sir Bruce?" I asked him.

"For others," he answered, "because no matter how high its mental power, it could not know what it was doing without human guidance. By direct action it strikes at those great and threatening movements to which those who control it are opposed. In my own case, frankly, I do not find much to quarrel with, and thousands and thousands of other men of good-will, who share my convictions, must view these terrible events with equanimity if not actual satisfaction! Do you not see that, if persisted in, these manifestations will not only revitalize thought, but also command conduct? The effects are calculable, if the power continues consistent. We perceive what it disapproves; and how is man to develop any policy, or proceed on any new principle of socialistic government, or false religious theory, if those who wield this weapon choose to intervene and stay him?"

"Of course he cannot," I admitted. "The errors no doubt could be easily attacked a nation as an institution, an army as an individual. One prays that human heads and human hearts control this awful power. That is the world's only hope."

"It is true they might strip the face off the earth, as we peel the rind of an orange," he answered, "but when you say you hope the unknown have hearts, I echo your aspiration. Indeed, I firmly believe it is so. If I did not, I should share the herd instinct that is bringing vast numbers of the people to kneel in supplication to their Maker, who holds this energy and all energies in the hollow of His hand. I argue from what is done to what may be done, and entertain no apprehension that any diabolic, anti-human turn will be given to affairs."

Tomorrow I was to leave Grimwood and when Sir Hugh retired I strolled out on the terrace. It was then that there shot into my head a disquieting and almost horrible suspicion.

Was it within the bounds of possibility that this little, highly strung man, his back bent by a lifetime of study and his forehead furrowed with mental labors, could know more of the mystery than he pretended—more than anybody knew?

The night was close and one felt that the brooding cincture of its wings kept the air from Grimwood. A summer moon had ascended and hung, as it seemed, moodily above the dense, black regiments of the woods. I crossed an empty hayfield and plunged into the woods by a gamekeeper's path. As I reached a glade, and stood for a moment beside a great birch, suddenly the moonlight was darkened, but by no cloud.

A black shadow fell and moved upon the moonlit fern, and looking upward I perceived an enormous winged object flying above the tree tops. For a moment it had crossed the disk of the moon and so attracted my eyes.

Continued Tomorrow.

IS FREED BY BOND

Augusta, Ga., October 1.—William P. O'Keefe, who fled from Augusta the night of August 17, just a few days before a warrant had been sworn out for his charging on the larceny of 100 bales of cotton from the Allied Compress company, of which he was warehouseman, returned to Augusta early this morning and surrendered to Sheriff J. Plunkett.

Bond in the sum of $10,000 as fixed by Solicitor George Rains was immediately posted by O'Keefe and he was released. No formal arrest was made, O'Keefe going first to the offices of C. Vernon Elliott and A. H. Williamson, his attorneys, and from there to the sheriff's office to arrange bond.

Leaving Augusta in an automobile which he hired, O'Keefe went to Greenville and Charlotte, N. C., by train, and from there to El Paso, Texas, arriving at El Paso on Tuesday morning, August 21. From El Paso O'Keefe went to Juarez, Mexico, crossing the river there in a trolley car. From El Paso he telegraphed Mrs. O'Keefe as follows:

"Am well and safe in Mexico. Will write you later. Love, William P. O'Keefe."

After remaining in Juarez for about ten days O'Keefe went to Tijuana, Mexico, and from there to Havana, Cuba. From Havana he returned to Augusta by way of Florida, leaving Cuba last Friday morning and arriving here early this morning. An Associated Press dispatch from Havana several days ago reported that the consul there had been asked by the Cuban government to apprehend O'Keefe.

A Herald reporter found O'Keefe at the office of his attorneys today morning. He appeared in the best of health and was in his usual good humor, declaring that he was glad to get back to his home country. O'Keefe and his attorneys had no statement to make as to the larceny charges against him, as their immediate concern was to get O'Keefe out of the bankruptcy case. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against O'Keefe a few days after he left here, the principal creditor of the bankrupt being Barrett & Company, which firm alleged that O'Keefe was indebted to them for 100 bales of cotton, which he had misappropriated, the warehouse and for $4,000 in overdrawn salary. The other two claims were for small amounts.

Action Is Undecided. Messrs. Elliott and Williamson, in their reply to the petition, admitted insolvency, but Judge Joseph Ganahl, referee in bankruptcy, declined to adjudicate O'Keefe a bankrupt because of the absence of the alleged bankrupt. What action O'Keefe will take in the larceny case is not known at this time.

The warrant against O'Keefe was sworn out by Judge J. B. Johnson, Smith, a twelfth street merchant, and Johnson, a saw mill man of this county, are now at liberty here on bond.

"Rats" at Mercer

Forced to Tread Narrow Pathway

Macon, Ga., October 1.—(Special.) With the senior class sitting elevated on the judicial bench and the world-wise sophomores constituting "high sheriff" the subjugation of Mercer freshmen has begun. Rules laid down by the senior class, upheld by Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, president of the university, and approved by the sophomore class, stipulate that the "straight and narrow way" only is to be followed.

No freshman may be away from the dormitories later than 11 o'clock at night. The "rats" are not to inhabit pool rooms at any time. They must attend all athletic games in Macon, must sit together and "participate most actively and enthusiastically in cheering the teams."

No freshman is allowed to appear at a game with a young lady. First year men must wear the regulation orange and black caps on all occasions until Christmas. Only ministers are permitted to leave the campus to serve churches as exempted.

The sophomore class may impose any restrictions on freshmen activities that might not be deemed hazing, this being strictly banned. Violations of this rule by sophomores or freshmen are to be handled by the freshmen lay the offenders subject to a fine by the student tribunal.

It was the tribunal, the high court of the campus, that last night imposed on the freshmen the double line of sophs armed with belts and straps.

Only married students are exempted from observing the rules laid down by the senior class for the freshmen, they being entrusted to the care of their wives.

Thousands of Geese At Panacea Springs Presage Cold Blasts

Bainbridge, October 1.—(Special.) If the arrival of thousands of geese at Panacea Springs, Fla., is really a harbinger of a cold winter, the cold must certainly be on the way. J. W. Callahan of Bainbridge and Jace Brinson, of Brinson, two veteran hunters, who are back from the Springs and who are back from a trip there, state that there are thousands of geese on the islands of the Florida Bay.

Sparta, Ga., October 1.—(Special.) Schools of Hancock county opened this morning with the largest attendance in their history. The increased attendance is due to the compulsory law as well as the improved condition of the schools. Several have been consolidated since the close of the last term which gives the children the best of both worlds.

Waynesboro, Ga., October 1.—(Special.)—Judge A. L. Franklin convened the fall term of the superior court here Monday. He spoke to the grand jury in his charge on the constitution of the United States. There was not a very heavy docket and it is thought court will not last longer than three days.

Georgia Woman Tells of Scenes During Quakes

Thomaston, Ga., October 1.—(Special.)—Letters from Miss Mary Hansell of this city, who has been spending several months in Japan, tell of the scenes which she witnessed during the earthquake which did considerable damage to the city.

Miss Hansell had gone with Mr. and Mrs. Cousar and their young son from their summer home at Norfolk, Virginia, about two hours' ride, to attend a wedding on the evening of August 28.

Everything was quiet and peaceful for the wedding, but the next morning while Miss Hansell and Mrs. Cousar were out shopping they felt the little Japanese city in which they were standing begin to sway around, and running out they found the street filled with an excited crowd of American, English, Japanese and others, all greatly frightened.

Upon going back to the house of their friends where they were stopping they found everybody outside of the house. The quake came at intervals all day and at night, and they were obliged to keep on their clothes, only sleeping between quakes. One or two quakes were felt in church the next morning and several later on, with one or two quite severe ones in the night.

They decided to return to Norfolk Monday but found the trains so crowded with refugees they were obliged to wait until the next day and then make the trip in a boat car. They were very anxious to get away from Tokyo and the earthquake territory as soon as they could.

No one in Norfolk, Japan, had any serious illness, both places being great summer resorts for missionaries of all denominations, as well as for foreign tourists. Mr. and Mrs. Cousar and their young son, who were in Japan, had a very pleasant trip.

Miss Hansell will sail for home on October 6, coming via Seattle. Mr. Cousar having been sent back to recuperate at his home in Illinois, where with typhoid fever suffered some time ago.

Illness and Neglect Widespread in State, Health Officer Says

Quintana, Ga., October 1.—(Special.)—Dr. M. A. Fort, for a number of years health officer of this county, who resigned to accept a place with the state board of health as field officer, was in Quintana today on his way to various counties in the state where he is engaged in making malaria surveys.

He has never seen so much illness and neglect among the people of the poorer class as I have on this trip," said Dr. Fort. "I see the depression of prices in farm products reflecting in many communities and in the majority of families of tenants and co-operators. There never has been a greater need for health and charity organizations than at present, in my opinion. In one county I found so much malaria that I turned to the Red Cross for help in distributing malaria medicine and other necessary supplies."

According to Dr. Fort, there is also much suffering and neglect among the poor class of the state, as a result of short crops and long continued rains.

Erratic Price Movements Feature Stocks on Monday

New York, October 1.—Erratic price fluctuations took place in today's stock market in reflection of the struggle for control between opposing speculative forces. Leading industrial stocks showed a general decline on the day but several of the rails showed moderate gains on buying pressure.

Speculators for the decline made repeated assaults on individual issues. The effort to use the general market as a lever for the purpose of forcing a decline in the price of the rails was not successful.

Among the stocks which established new lows for the year were Standard Oil, General Electric, and American Telephone and Telegraph.

Standard Oil of New York fell 1 1/2 points to 29 1/2. General Electric fell 1/2 point to 28 1/2. American Telephone and Telegraph fell 1/2 point to 28 1/2.

New York, October 1.—The cotton market was quiet today, with traders evidently waiting for tomorrow's government report. Fluctuations were correspondingly narrow, but the undertone was generally steady and after selling at 28.17, December rallied to 28.39 or 9 points net higher.

December closed at 28.37, with the general market advancing a half point to 28.39, with the market opening steady at a decline of 3 to 4 points owing to reports of good weather in the south and the rather unsettling influence of the news regarding disturbances in Germany. Selling on the latter feature was comparatively small and prices soon turned steadier on scattered covering, combined with a little buying believed to be for trade account. This became more active late in the afternoon, there were reports that southern spinners were fixing prices, and the best prices of the day were touched in the late trading, October sold up to 28.45, the early low level to 28.15, and January from 27.63 to 27.90, with the active month generally showing net advances of 9 to 15 points. Last prices were a little off from the best under realizing. Additional private reports were secured, with conditions generally ranging from 48.5 up to 52.3 and indicated yield figures from 10,761,000 up to 11,240,000 bales, but they had no apparent effect on sentiment. A canvass of the New York cotton exchange members indicated an average expectation that tomorrow's government report would show a condition of 49.4. Possibly the late afternoon buying was stimulated somewhat by the big reports for the day, but the figures had been fore-shadowed by advances from the southwest reaching here late last week. Port receipts today 111,281 bales. Total receipts, 532,020. Exports 89,554, making 833,115 so far this season.

SMALL DECLINES AT NEW ORLEANS.
New Orleans, October 1.—The favorable weather prevailing here and all sections of the belt and the forecast of more favorable weather to come were the main selling influence in the cotton market today. Bailing it was bullish expectations regarding tomorrow's crop from the government and the large export movement. While small declines ruled during almost the entire session, the close was 6 points up to 7 points down, net for the day, the closing range of December being 27.77 to 27.80 cents a pound.

In the early session the market was at its lowest, 27.77 to 27.80, under the close of last week. December traded off to 27.50. Recoveries set in almost immediately and during the whole of the session it was a series of minor fluctuations, small down swings and recoveries, the list at its highest standing 7 points up to 1 point down, compared with the final prices of last week. December traded at 27.80 at its best.

It was considered that the dry and warm weather over the belt might have caused more selling but for the bureau reports tomorrow, which had the effect of restricting new operations of any consequence. At the same time, it was also considered that the large export movement might have caused more buying but for the news of bureau day. Houston cleared 61,281 bales for foreign export and total clearances from all ports for foreign ports were 80,754 bales. No cotton officially cleared Galveston, but private message stated that shipments out of that port amounted to 175,325 bales, of which 142,225 were for foreign countries. These shipments are expected to be included in tomorrow's figures.

FOR THE ELAVED

ROB KULL PLAYED BY JUDGE BARRETT

Macon, Ga., October 1.—(Special.) Judge William H. Barrett, of United States district court, condemned law-

The court, said Judge Barrett, could be so conducted that all men know that neither the menace of poverty, the slim stealth of wealth or the uproar of the lawless and the mob have any effect."

"No government," he concluded, "can go far wrong. and no people be long dissatisfied, if intelligent, by justice dominates. When courts administer laws fairly to all men it is an utter refutation of the excuse claimed by the lawless that it is necessary for them to disregard and override the law. As is well-known those of you who have had experience in courts, it is inevitable that with all the assiduity, patience, care and conscience that can be devoted to the ascertainment of the truth will at times be failures, but it is inherent in human character. But how much less probable is the chance of reaching a fair result when there are no trials, when the punished is not informed of the offense charged, when he has had no opportunity of having his witnesses, no fair tribunal to hear his defense, and no opportunity to protect himself before his fellow citizens against the alleged injury. Let me assure you that better by abuse, or condemnation, or by reasoning, will you have loved to set at rest the largely prevailing lawlessness with which we are afflicted, by your service as judges in the same way as your predecessors have served for the past 100 years."

At the opening of court Judge Barstow announced that it was the first anniversary of his service in this court. He opened the October term court last year as his first service in Macon. Today for the first time he had ascended to the bench of the United States district court. Judge Barrett wore the robes of his office.

Tongue-tied Business

It often occurs that a man reaches out after a higher class of business which he does not get—and wonders why.

To the advertising expert the reason is very simple; this man is not talking to his prospective customers in an appealing manner; what he says, does not carry enough force with it. Perhaps he is using "shoddy" looking stationery which is not engraved in a manner that will attract the public—we can say a great deal about this—Call up our city salesman (Walnut 1145) and have him explain these valuable points. J. P. Stevens Engraving Co.,

BALDWIN VAGUE AT PREMIER MEET

London, October 1.—The British prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, gave a brief talk today to the premiers of Britain's dominions, gathered here for the imperial conference, in which he alluded in general terms to the many problems confronting the governments but without making definite announcement with respect to them. So far as the situation in Germany was concerned, this was left to Lord Curzon, secretary for foreign affairs, who will make a detailed statement in the course of the week.

The prime minister, without referring to the Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr, spoke of the "honest divergence of opinion" between England and France and reiterated Great Britain's desire to preserve good relations with that country.

One decisive statement was that the British government was willing to cooperate with other governments in limiting the strength of air armaments.

The dominion premiers also spoke briefly. General Smuts, of the Union of South Africa, laying particular stress on the need of a complete settlement in Europe.

The conference will meet again
Wednesday morning.

THREE ARE DISCHARGED BY SHERIFF OF BIBB

Macon, Ga., October 1.—(Special.)
With the avowed intention of clearing his office of all Ku Klux Klan influence, Sheriff J. R. Hicks, of Bibb county, today dismissed three of the Klan's leaders from the county jail.

Thirty days ago, it is understood, the Klan, out of the jail, with a month there would be no Ku Klux Klanmen attached to the sheriff's office and the thirty days was up today.

The three deputies dismissed were Homer Hardison, former chief of detectives of the city police department; Romana Bailey and L. G. Holmes, the latter having been office deputy.

Charles L. Bowden was the county police officer who was formerly chief of police of Macon.

Romana Bailey readily admitted this membership of the Klan. He had no apologies to make for it. Bowden admitted he was formerly a member of the Klan, but withdrew his membership. Holmes could not be located. The shakeup leaves the sheriff with only four deputies, but he announces he will continue the office in the best manner possible until he can secure new deputies.

During the recent flooding trials in this county it had been freely charged that the sheriff's office was dominated by the Ku Klux Klan.

Radio Bearings Sent to Delphy Were All Wrong

San Diego, October 1.—All of the radio bearings received by the U. S.
S. Delphy shortly before she led destroyer squadron eleven into the rocks off Honda, Calif., were incorrect, but they were all correct in so far as they showed the ships still too far north to attempt an eastward change of course into Santa Barbara channel, an expert in navigation late today told the naval court of inquiry investigating the disaster.

The bearings were from one to eight degrees in error, according to the witness, Lieutenant Commander H. A. Jones, former instructor in navigation at Annapolis and for seven years a commander of destroyers.
Fifty miles out to sea, he explained, such an error would destroy the usefulness of a radio bearing, but at the distance from land at which the Delphy was traveling, they were "accurate enough to indicate her approximate position."

In approximately 25 instances in which he has taken a vessel past Point Arguello en route to San Diego, the witness said, he has not hesitated to use radio bearings, despite the fact that "they have generally been in error," a few degrees one way or the other.

So reliable in a general way were these bearings, he said, that he frequently depended upon them when rounding the point in foggy weather and did not think it necessary to take soundings as an additional check on his navigation.

Had he been in command of the Delphy on the day in question, however, he added, he would have begun taking soundings an hour before the disaster, and a change of course was expected in an effort to determine the squadron's exact position.

Thirty of the thirteen naval officers named defendants in the inquiry took the stand at this morning's session, their testimony differing little from that of others who had already told their stories of the disaster.

'Got Right Man,' Gasps When Shot By Girl's Brother

Villa Rica, Ga., October 1.—(Special.)
"He got the right man. I caused all the trouble."

These were the dying words of J. O. Coogler, young farmer, shot to death near here Sunday by Roy Ivey, 19, according to David Hannah, who rushed to the thicket when the shooting occurred and was with Coogler when he died. The fatal fray took place near the Ivey home.

Coogler was under indictment in Paulding county on a statutory charge in connection with Ivey's sister, but had not been tried.

Ivey declared after the killing that he found Coogler in a thicket near his father's home, and that when he asked him what he was doing there, Coogler cursed him and reached into his pocket for a weapon. It was said that an open knife was found in the dead man's hand.

Surrendering immediately after the killing, Ivey is held in jail, pending a hearing. A coroner's jury which investigated the case today reported that Coogler met his death at the hands of Ivey.

Two pistol bullets took effect in Coogler's body, one in the chest and the other in the shoulder.

Commitment trial of Ivey, will take place Wednesday at Dallas, it was announced late today.

Coogler is survived by his wife, two children, his father, and several brothers.

It was said that the slain man had been warned to stay away from the Ivey home following his alleged affair with young Ivey's sister.

alist nature.

RIVER PIRATES GET $11,000 IN SHIP RAID

New York, October 1.—Quietly stealing alongside the freight steamer Bridgetown in rowboat, late last night, a gang of river pirates, heavily armed with revolvers and knives, overpowered the crew and stole $11-000 in gold bars and platinum from the ship's strong box, which they opened by means of acetylene torches, it was learned today.
